Carter, Brown due at fair

No clear-cut debate winner

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Both President Ford and Jimmy Carter are claiming victory in the first of the 1976 debates. But a nationwide Associated Press poll showed today that neither candidate was the clear winner, although Ford attracted slightly more new supporters.

The restrained yet contentious confrontation was laden with economic statistics and political rhetoric but barren of any new proposals.

"I thought I did well," the Democratic nominee told reporters as he left the Walnut Street Theater, site of the debate. Carter said he had wanted to stress what he considers Ford's lack of leadership "and I think I did that very adequately."

"I enjoyed it very much," Ford said on leaving the theater. Asked who won, the President replied, "The American people."

Ford, his head a-glow with confetti showered upon him by several hundred partisans attending a post-debate party in a downtown hotel, declared that from "what I've heard, we did all right in that debate."

The President presumably was unaware that Carter, minutes earlier, had said he felt Ford had done "a good job." The Democratic presidential candidate also spoke highly of his own performance.

Later, Ford told supporters, "We have a turning point in this campaign ... The momentum is on our side."

Answers were filled with figures, billions of dollars in deficits, other billions in surpluses and still others in taxes. The candidates also referred to millions employed and other millions unemployed.

The numbers that filled their responses had been among the materials that were included in the thick briefing books each had used to prepare for the confrontation.

The debate, focusing on economic issues and domestic policy, was scheduled to run 90 minutes but was interrupted for 27 minutes by an amplifying system failure that cut off the sound to the estimated 90 million persons watching it on television.

The American Broadcasting Co., which was in charge of technical aspects of the telecast, said the breakdown was in "a pool audio distribution amplifying system" used to send the sound to the other networks. ABC engineers were trying to pinpoint the cause of the failure.

The AP poll was conducted among 1,065 scientifically chosen viewers who were questioned both before and immediately after the debate. It showed that 34.4 per cent of those who watched on television thought Ford had won and 31.8 per cent thought Carter had won. The rest, 33.8 per cent, didn't or couldn't pick a winner.

Statistically, the margin between Ford and Carter was too small for a clear winner to be declared. Experts say that a sample of this size could err by 2.9 per cent from what the result would be if all viewers were polled.

Voters were asked their preference for president. Carter supporters numbered 45.3 per cent before the debate and 46.9 per cent afterward. Ford was preferred by 41 per cent of the voters before the debate and 44.9 per cent afterward.

The undecided vote dropped from 11.9 per cent before to 7.1 after.

The poll was taken for The AP by Chilton Research Services of Radnor, Pa. The firm specializes in high-speed telephone polling.

The debate, scheduled to run 90 minutes but interrupted for 27 minutes by an electronic failure that cut off the sound to the millions

Leader of prisoners dies in cell

A leader of an underground prison organization was found hanged in his California Institution for Men cell Thursday morning. Chino police called it "a possible homicide."

Guards found the body of Robert Garza, 25, of Sanger, hanging from an air vent by a rope made from bedsheets. They cut him down and rushed him to the clinic, where it was determined that he was dead. An autopsy was scheduled at Griffith Mortuary in Chino this morning.

The body had numerous bruises. There was a cut on the nose and a possible ear puncture. Garza was alone in the cell, but all the cells had been open earlier.

Detective Dave DeLeon said Garza, a recent transfer from the California Rehabilitation Center at Norco, was believed to be a high-ranking member of La Nuestra Familia, an underground prison organization.

DeLeon speculated that Garza had been slain as part of a power struggle in the organization or possibly had broken one of the group's laws.

Upland woman run over and killed by her own car

An Upland housewife was killed Thursday morning when her car slipped into gear and ran over her as she was closing her garage doors.

Mrs. Bernice Mary Hortness, 60, of 368 S. Laurel Ave., died a short time later at San Antonio Community Hospital.

Police said she had driven the car from the garage and gone to lock the doors when the car slipped into gear and began to roll toward her. She apparently tried to get into the car to put on the brakes, but it knocked her down and she fell beneath the wheels. The left front wheel came to rest on her chest.

She was discovered by a neighbor who called the police.

Mrs. Hortness was born in Flandreau, S.D., on July 4, 1916. She formerly lived in Pomona. She was a member of St. Joseph's Catholic Church, Upland.

Surviving are her husband Melvin; a son, Michael of Upland; a daughter, Mrs. Annelle Dotson of Ontario; and two grandchildren.

Rosary will be recited at 7 p.m. Sunday at Stone Funeral Home, Upland. Mass will be celebrated Monday at 9 a.m. at St. Joseph's Church. Burial will be made at Bellevue Cemetery, Ontario.

Arrival planned Saturday

Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. will accompany Jimmy Carter when the Democratic Presidential nominee visits the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona on Saturday.

The two Democratic leaders will depart from San Diego and arrive at Ontario International Airport about 12:30 p.m. Carter's private jet will be parked near the cargo freight building east of the control tower.

Supporters of Carter are invited to greet him on his arrival at the airport.

Following brief remarks here, Carter and Brown will travel by motorcade to the fairgrounds, arriving about 1:45 p.m. The route the motorcade will take between Ontario and Pomona wasn't disclosed for security reasons.

At the fair, they will walk through the crowd before viewing a square dance demonstration at the Plaza of the States. Carter is expected to join the square dancers.

Carter and Brown will leave the fairgrounds at 2:30 p.m. and travel to East Los Angeles where they will meet with Mexican-American leaders.

They will later attend a reception at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles. Then on Sunday, they will be in Santa Ana to participate in a parade.

While in the valley, Carter and Brown will be hosted by Rep. Jim Lloyd, D-65th Dist., and Assemblyman Bill McVittie, D-65th Dist.

Debate grabs huge TV audience in big cities

NEW YORK (AP) — More than half the households with television sets in New York and Chicago were tuned to the presidential debates Thursday night, according to overnight ratings compiled by the A.C. Nielsen Co.

No estimate was available on how many people watched the debate between President Ford and Democrat Jimmy Carter, the TV rating company said.

However, a Nielsen official said that television sets in 4.9 million households in the two cities were tuned to the debates.

There had been advance speculation that 100 million Americans across the country might watch the televised debate.

The rating in New York for the three major networks combined was 51 per cent of the households, the company said. That gave the debate a 78 per cent share of the audience viewing television at the time.

In Chicago the rating for the three networks combined at 54.9 per cent for an 81 per cent share of the audience.

In New York, when the additional households tuned to the debate on the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) outlet were included, the rating went up to 53.7 and the share to 82 per cent. That meant that more than four out of five households were watching the debate. There were no separate figures for PBS in Chicago.

In New York, there were 3.2 million households watching the three major networks, a total of 3.4 million households if the PBS viewers are included. In Chicago, television sets in nearly 1.5 million households were tuned to the debate.

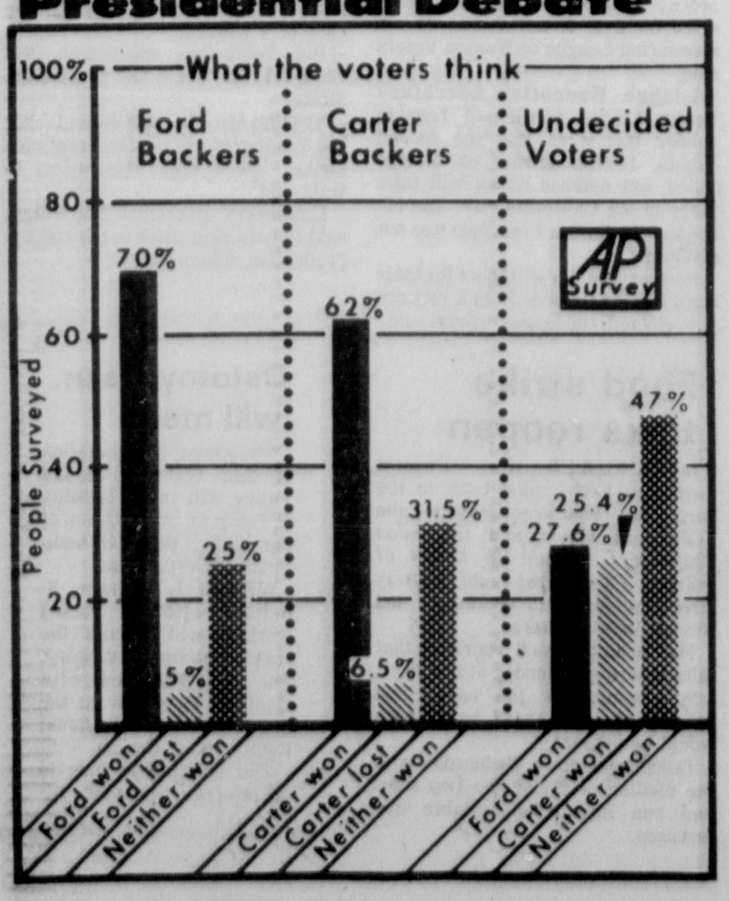
That was the decision Thursday of the Nevada Gaming Commission.

The Presidential Debate



27 minutes of silence in great debate

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The greatest technological civilization in the history of all mankind seemed to come unzipped last night during the greatest television event since man walked on the moon which, in the opinion of a previous presidential debater, was the greatest single event since the Creation.

And that is what all of us 100 to 200 million — or was it billion? — fans out there in TV land will remember instead of who won.

For 27 minutes in a low drama of high frustration witnessed from coast to coast and pole to pole and simultaneously translated into almost every language except Urdu, the two major candidates for the most powerful office in the entire universe remained helplessly at their little plywood lecterns like two cases of arrested motion in a jammed piece of silent film.

They smiled lamely now and then, but they stayed on their feet as if neither dared to be the first to sit. After all, in this cosmic battle of imagery, who wants to elect a man president who can't stand on his own two feet and say nothing at the same time?

Jimmy Carter finally took the risk. He sat. Gerald Ford didn't. He remained on his feet, frozen in an aggressive pose, leaning forward, hands clutching the lectern, like a sprinter waiting for a gun that wouldn't go off.

Throughout the 27 minutes, while only eight and a half feet apart, while technicians crawled frantically around for the unplugged plug, the two gladiators never spoke to each other or acknowledged the other man's presence.

The collective talents of Edwin Booth, Sarah Bernhardt, W.C. Fields, the Barrymores and all the other great artists who trod the boards of the old Walnut Street Theater could not have managed a more striking study of mutual non-recognition.

More than 15 minutes into the historic delay that stopped the world, while the hot lights were still blazing and the camera shifted momentarily away, Ford did a bold thing against all the conventional wisdom. He took out a handkerchief and mopped his face.

Carter shot him a glance and whipped out his own handkerchief. Both men, of course, were acutely aware that Richard Nixon (the chap who said the moon walk was the greatest thing since Creation) lost his first shot at the presidency by sweating on a coast to coast hookup.

Until the 27-minute gap in sound heard round the world, it is alleged by some that we saw a debate. Others insist, however, that the two adversaries could have achieved the same general affect by conducting separate news conferences in Washington and Plains, Ga.

In the hiatus of sound, the resourceful networks wrung answers out of Ron Nessen, Ford's press secretary, and Rosalynn Carter, wife of the Democrat. Nessen averred that his boss was the clear winner. Mrs. Carter allowed as how Jimmy did best.

It seemed a fair sample.

GUNMEN FREE HOSTAGES

Police protect Steve Parola of Pomona, one of 25 hostages freed Thursday night by two gunmen who took seige in a San Bernardino restaurant after an apparently unsuccessful robbery attempt. Police said the men, armed with revolvers and a sawed-off shotgun, went into a Sizzler Steak restaurant and took patrons and workers hostage. After an hour of negotiations, the pair surrendered without a shot being fired.

Harrises give innocent plea in kidnaping

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — More than six months after her dramatic conviction as a terrorist bank robber, Patricia Hearst was ready today to learn her punishment.

U.S. District Court Judge William H. Orrick Jr. is scheduled to hand down the long-awaited sentence, one day after legal wrangling on both sides of San Francisco Bay recalled Miss Hearst's 2½-year cross-country saga from college coed to convicted felon.

In Berkeley, William and Emily Harris pleaded innocent Thursday to state charges that they kidnaped the newspaper heiress on Feb. 4, 1974, spawning her strange 19-month journey in the terrorist underground.

Across the bay in San Francisco, the prosecutor and the defense attorney who opposed each other during Miss Hearst's eight-week trial last spring on charges of bank robbery met Thursday with Orrick to discuss what both sides called "housekeeping matters."

Defense attorneys F. Lee Bailey and Al Johnson were unusually tight-lipped as they emerged from a 45-minute private meeting with Orrick and U.S. Atty. James L. Browning.

Bailey refused to outline his expected arguments for probation, but said Miss Hearst, 22, is "anxious to get the proceedings on."

"I have no idea what Judge Orrick will impose," Browning said Thursday. "It is my understanding that the government will have an opportunity to make a recommendation as to sentence." He declined to say what his recommendation would be.

Each side was expected to take about half an hour for arguments. There was no indication whether Bailey would immediately move for a new trial, as he has said he would do after the sentencing.

The defendant, who has been undergoing court-ordered psychiatric testing in San Diego since April, could receive as light a sentence as time served or a maximum penalty of 35 years in prison.

She was found guilty March 20 of joining her Symbionese Liberation Army captors in the April 15, 1974, armed holdup of the Hibernia Bank in a quiet residential section of San Francisco.

On the witness stand, she tearfully failed to convince her jury that she took part only because she was ordered to participate or die.

She blamed the Harrises for continuing the terror against her after six SLA members died in a shootout with Los Angeles police a month after the bank holdup.

The Harrises, convicted last month for a May 1974 Los Angeles crime spree for which Miss Hearst faces trial next January, have assailed Miss Hearst's credibility. They claim she willingly joined the tiny terrorist tribe and lied about it on the witness stand.

Californians reveal their debate thoughts

By The Associated Press

California's popular reaction to the first televised debate between President Ford and Democrat Jimmy Carter fell generally along party lines, but expert opinions on effectiveness in the confrontation were farflung and varied.

Neither the Republicans nor the Democrats declared anything near a rout in the technically flawed contest in which 27 minutes of sound were lost.

A poll conducted by a radio station in Los Angeles, where most California voters live, showed that the minds of 41.14 per cent of the listeners were changed by the debate.

In San Diego County, most television viewers polled found that neither candidate had carved a clear victory, though Ford won a slight edge.

In San Francisco, James Lynn, presidential-appointed director of the federal Office of Management and Budget said, he was "very, very pleased" with his boss's performance.

"The President came across as I know him, and that's all I hoped for," he said. "The President was able to advise the American people of what his specific proposals are. Mr. Carter refused to say what his specific proposals are."

At a fundraiser for his reelection campaign, Sen. John Tunney, D-Calif., called the debate "a dead heat."

'Each candidate appealing to his own constituency'

"Each candidate was appealing to his own constituency. But if I had to balance it out, Carter's base of support is probably larger," said Tunney.

Tunney's Democratic colleague in the Senate, Alan Cranston, also attended the fundraiser and said neither candidate made any major mistakes.

"Ford took the lead in the first exchange, but Carter overtook him," said Cranston. "Carter was a little nervous, uptight at first, but he relaxed. He even smiled several times. Ford was quite grim all the way through."

Cranston said Carter probably scored more points because he "spoke in human terms about the problems people are facing. Ford had memorized a lot of statistics."

In Oxnard, Tunney's Republican opponent, S.I. Hayakawa, said Ford and Carter "did a great public service." Hayakawa added he "liked the President's final statement on freedom."

In Los Angeles, Carter fared far better than President Ford, according to a poll conducted of 474 persons by radio station KPFK.

KPFK station manager Will Lewis said, "The poll seems to indicated a considerable shifting on the part of many who were fence-sitters. Among the politically motivated, the debate seemed to make a substantial difference."

Lewis said 54.9 per cent of the persons contacted said they would vote for Carter and 26.9 per cent for Ford. Those who were undecided accounted for 18.1 per cent.

Broken down by parties, 68.2 per cent of the Republicans said they would vote for Ford and 17.9 per cent for Carter, with 13.8 per cent undecided. Among Democrats, 70.54 per cent favored Carter, 12.76 per cent backed Ford and 16.7 per cent were undecided.

Independent voters gave only a slight edge to Carter, who got 40.8 per cent of their votes. Ford got 29.9 per cent, and 29.2 per cent were undecided.

Lewis said the biggest factor in the poll seemed to be the number of persons who had changed their positions as a result of the debate.

'Surprised Carter didn't discuss Nixon, Watergate'

Among Republicans, 41.67 per cent changed their minds — 13.5 per cent to back Carter, 19.8 per cent to back Ford, and 8.33 per cent from a fixed position to undecided.

Of the Democrats, 38.36 per cent said they had changed their minds — 24.6 per cent to back Carter, 9.5 per cent in favor of Ford and 4.2 per cent who became undecided.

More than half — 52.05 per cent — of the independents changed their minds — 23.3 per cent in favor of Carter, 26 per cent in favor of Ford and 2.7 who became undecided.

Of the 843 persons polled, 63.2 per cent were Democrats, 20.5 per cent Republicans and 16.2 per cent independent. Voter registration figures for Los Angeles County show 59.8 per cent of the voters Democrats, 34.3 per cent Republican, and 5.9 per cent in all other parties.

In San Diego, a poll commissioned and copyrighted by the San Diego Union, 34 per cent of viewers said Ford

Reward for bomb info

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Department of Water and Power has posted a $2,000 reward for information leading to persons who planted the bomb that exploded in the Owens Valley aqueduct.

There have been no leads in the case, a spokesman said Thursday. No specific motive has been determined for the bombing, but the aqueduct has been a source of controversy since 1970.

The aqueduct was bombed five miles north of Lone Pine at the Alabama Gates on Sept. 15, causing an estimated $100,000 damage and spilling about 100 million gallons of water.

The was no interruption in the flow of water to Los Angeles. The aqueduct supplies 80 per cent of the city's water. Reservoirs between the damaged area and the city are full enough to supply the city until repairs are made.

Swine flu aid arrives in state

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Enough vaccine to immunize 430,000 Californians has arrived in the first shipment to the state under the national campaign against swine flu.

State Department of Health officials said the shipments arrived Thursday at Los Angeles and San Francisco, and another 356,000 doses are due within a few days.

The initial allotments are for medically high-risk persons and are earmarked for Fresno and Sacramento county health departments, said Dale Kay, chief of the state's immunization unit.

Those two counties plan to start mass immunization programs within a few days, Kay said.

Most county health departments plan to start administering the vaccine in mid-October, he said.

A 210,000-dose shipment arrived at Los Angeles International Airport and crates containing 220,000 doses arrived at San Francisco International Airport.

The vaccine, from Merck, Sharpe, and Dohme, Inc., in West Point, Pa., will protect against both the "A-New Jersey" or swine flu and the A-Victoria flu.

Pauline Banzano, state health spokeswoman in Berkeley, said a system to get vaccine to private physicians "is still in the planning stage."

The initial 786,000 doses are for chronically ill persons, the elderly and others considered as high risks medically.

Kay said a second type of vaccine will be available for the general population, and he expects enough doses to safeguard 2.3 million Californians to arrive before Oct. 15.

California is scheduled to receive enough vaccine for 5 million medically high-risk persons and 12 million adults, Kay said.

Ford-Carter rematch set

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — President Ford and Democratic challenger Jimmy Carter, who held their first nationally televised debate here Thursday night, will have their second confrontation in San Francisco on Oct. 6, an official of the sponsoring League of Women Voters said.

League Executive Secretary Peggy Lampl confirmed reports earlier this week that the second debate, to concentrate on foreign policy and defense issues will take place in the California city. The exact location in San Francisco was not disclosed.

Ford and Carter will meet for their third debate October 22 in a city not yet selected, the league official said.

Food strike talks reopen

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Federal mediators have called back to the bargaining table negotiators for the Teamsters Union and the Food Employers Council in hopes of averting a strike that could severely affect deliveries to California and Nevada grocery stores.

The mediators said Thursday that talks will reopen Sunday at 10 a.m.

Spokesmen for the union and employers said their bargainers would be present.

Talks broke down Wednesday with the mediators saying the two sides had run into irreconcilable differences.

The Teamsters have voted 7-1 to authorize their negotiators to call a strike.

"Since the Teamsters have threatened a strike, we have prepared for a strike," said Robert K. Fox, president of the Food Employers Council. "We have contacted independent trucking companies" to handle the workload in case of a walkout.

But Teamsters spokesman Jim Peck said the union has no plans to strike.

"I think Mr. Fox's problem is that the Teamsters are not threatening a strike," Peck said. "He seems to want one."

Employers spokesman Bob Voight said the sticking point in the talks is production standards.

The meeting is open to all interested persons.

Ford, Carter repeat familiar lines

By The Associated Press

President Ford and Jimmy Carter were asked familiar questions and provided familiar answers in their debate on domestic and economic issues Thursday night. Both candidates stuck closely to previously stated positions in the key areas of jobs, taxes and federal spending.

They exchanged a few charges and countercharges within the debate format which limited response by either candidate to the other's accusations. On the whole, however, the Ford and Carter responses to questions followed the themes they have been sounding since the campaign started.

Ford defended his record and stressed his experience, saying the country cannot afford the programs of the Democratic candidate. Carter said that if he were in the White House he could cut both inflation and unemployment, balance the budget and provide the money to pay for his proposals.

Here are highlights of what the candidates said on the major issues:

TAXES

FORD: "I think the way to get tax equity in this country is to give tax relief to the middle income people, who have an income from roughly $8,000 up to $25,000 or $30,000. ... In my tax reduction program for middle-income taxpayers, I recommended that the Congress increase personal exemptions from $750 per person to $1,000 per person. ... With the stimulus of more money in the hands of taxpayers and with more money in the hands of business to expand, to modernize, to provide more jobs, our economy will be stimulated so that we'll get more revenue and we'll have a more prosperous economy."

CARTER: "The present tax structure is a disgrace. ... Twenty-five per cent of the total tax deductions go for only 1 per cent of the richest people in this country. And over 50 per cent of the tax credits go for the 14 per cent of the richest people in this country. (We need) to hold down taxes on individuals and to shift the tax burden onto those who have avoided taxes in the past. ... A few things can be done. We have now a deferral system so that the multinational corporations who invest overseas .., they don't have to pay any of their taxes unless they bring their money back into this country. They don't pay their taxes, but the average American pays the taxes for them. ... I wouldn't do away with all business deductions. I think that would be a very serious mistake. But if you could just do away with the ones that are unfair, you could lower taxes for everyone. ..."

CARTER: "... This (cutting unemployment) is an effort that ought to be done primarily by strong leadership in the White House. ... There are several things that can be done specifically that are not now being done. ... Channel research and development funds into areas that will provide large numbers of jobs. We need to have a commitment in the private sector to cooperate with government in matters like housing. ... Another thing is to deal with our needs in the central cities, where the unemployment rate is extremely high. ... Here a CCC-type program would be appropriate. ... I believe that by the end of the first four years of the next term, we could have the unemployment rate down to 3 per cent adult unemployment, which is about 4 to 4½ per cent over-all. ..."

FORD: "I don't believe that Mr. Carter has been any more specific in this case than he has been on many other instances. ... In my judgment, the best way to get the jobs is to expand the private sector. ... We can do that by reducing federal taxes. ... We could add to jobs in the major metropolitan areas by a proposal I recommended that would give tax incentives to business to move into the inner city. ... We could also help our youth as some of the proposals that would give to young people an opportunity to work and learn at the same time, just like we give money to young people who are going to college. ..."

FEDERAL SPENDING

CARTER: "... My economic projections ... have been with $60 billion in extra money that can be spent in fiscal year '81. ... Within that $60 billion increase, there would be fit those programs that I have promised the American people. I might say that if we see that these goals cannot be reached ... then I would cut back on the rate of implementation of new programs in order to accomodate a balanced budget by fiscal year '81. ... (If elected) I'm going to institute zero-based budgeting which assesses every program every year. ... We will have a balanced budget by fiscal year 1981. ..."

FORD; "I've vetoed 56 bills. Congress has sustained 42 vetos. As a result, we have saved over $9 billion in federal expenditures. And the Congress by overriding the bills that

Widespread flooding clogs desert towns

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Southern California thunderstorms have caused widespread flooding in desert regions for the second time in two weeks.

In the Coachella Valley, at least 40 homes in Palm Desert were flooded with rainwater and mud Thursday, and more than a dozen homes in exclusive La Quinta were inundated when water surged through breaks in a flood-control dike.

The Palm Desert, Rancho Mirage and La Quinta area received more than 1.3 inches of rain in three hours Thursday and intermittent rain was continuing to fall early today.

In Riverside County, crews from the state Division of Forestry undertook large-scale sandbagging operations in the area around Indio and sent out an urgent call for 10,000 more sandbags.

"If it keeps raining, we'll be in trouble," said George Schultejann, in charge of Riverside County's emergency operations center.

Flash flood warnings were in effect for most low-lying areas.

Several major traffic arteries were closed by the storm.

Route 96 between Needles and Searchlight, Nev., became impassable when rainwaters washed away repairs made after the last storm.

California 76 between the Salton Sea and Julian was closed by mudslides along many sections of the road. Highway 86 north of Westmorland was closed when a bridge washed out, and Highway 111 north of Niland was closed by flooding.

Other highways closed by the rising waters were California 62 and 95 between Needles and Blythe and parts of U.S. 95 from Needles to the Riverside-San Bernardino county lines.

Communities in the Salton Sea area experienced the worst flooding.

"There is heavy flooding in Niland, Bombay Beach and in Salton City on the west shore," said Imperial County Sheriff's Lt. Mike Singh. "The only way to get into and out of Bombay Beach is by four-wheel drive vehicle."

Streets were still reported awash in the Niland area early Friday morning after a flood-control channel overflowed.

In the Anza Borrego Desert to the west, up to three inches of rain fell during Thursday's storm.

"If it had rained another inch, we would have had some really bad news," said Ranger Bud Getty.

Elizabeth Stahl, partner in a motel in Borrego Springs, said, "We've been here three and a half years and I've never seen so much rain. Water was even coming into our rooms."

The National Weather Service in Los Angeles said the latest storm was the result of moisture-laden subtropical air being pushed up from Mexico into western Arizona and Southern California.

On Sept. 10, the last vestiges of Tropical Storm Kathleen, which was wallowing off the coast of Baja California, dumped heavy thundershowers on Southern California mountains and deserts. At least two persons were killed in that storm.

During the Sept. 10 storm more than eight inches of rain was reported in the mountain community of Julian, between San Diego and El Centro, and as much as three inches in some desert communities.

Half of the desert foothill community of Ocotillo was washed away when a wall of water four feet high surged down the Laguna mountains.

Carter satisfied with his showing

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Fresh from his first debate with President Ford, Jimmy Carter voiced satisfaction with his performance and promptly resumed campaigning today with an address to leaders of a Polish-American organization.

"I feel good about the debate and look forward to the next one," the smiling, relaxed Democratic presidential nominee told a rally of young volunteer workers after Thursday night's encounter with Ford.

Carter agreed with his top aides, who said he got off to a slow start at the beginning of the debate. But he said he thought Ford did, too.

"The points I wanted to make demonstrate clearly the absence of leadership of Mr. Ford and the impact on people's lives in the last two years," Carter said. "I think I did that very adequately."

"I think he was a winner, but I'm not really prejudiced," his wife Rosalynn chimed in.

Addressing the Polish-American Congress before flying West, Carter declined to promise that he would appoint a Polish-American to his cabinet, saying that making such a commitment "would be inappropriate and possibly illegal."

He emphasized, however, that one of his chief foreign policy advisers, Columbia University Prof. Zbigniew Brzezinski, would "play a major role" in a Carter administration. Brzezinski is of Polish origin.

Pomonan accused of holding 25 hostages in S.B. robbery

A Pomona man and two other persons were arrested Thursday after holding 25 persons hostage in a San Bernardino restaurant robbery attempt.

The man was identified as Roy Reynolds, 30, of Pomona. No address was given. The other two persons apprehended by police were identified as Kathleen King, 27, of Whittier and Steven Lewis King, 37, of Phoenix, Ariz. Police said the Kings are apparently not related.

Police said two men and a woman entered a Sizzler restaurant in San Bernardino at 9:20 p.m. Thursday and herded workers and patrons into a walk-in refrigerator. The men were armed with revolvers and a sawed-off shotgun, police said.

However, police responding to a silent alarm saw the armed men through the window, called for reinforcements, and surrounded the building.

Negotiations were carried on in several telephone calls into the restaurant by police during more than an hour. Officials said the trio offered to release all hostages unharmed if they were given a getaway car and guaranteed safe passage.

Ten of the hostages were released during the negotiations, but the gunmen refused to release any more until they got a getaway car.

The female member of the trio was arrested when she tried to make a getaway in her own car.

The two gunmen surrendered to police at about 10:30 p.m. without a shot having been fired. The rest of the hostages were freed unharmed.

Still serious

Seventeen-year-old David Gallegos remained in serious condition today in Pomona Valley Community Hospital where he was under treatment for stab wounds suffered Wednesday afternoon during a fight between two Pomona families in which a 14-year-old youth was killed.

Meanwhile, Pomona police were attempting to sort out the facts of the case while six suspects, four adults and two juvenile boys, remained in jail.

Police Lt. Richard Zbinden said there was a likelihood that one of those arrested would be released today without charge and that charges against some of the remaining suspects would be reduced.

The trouble involved members of the Rivera and Gallegos families and the fracas developed as the result of a fight among younger family members, police said.

Both families live in the 1000 block of W. Grand Avenue.

Badges stolen

Two Covina men, members of the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department mounted posse, reported the recent theft of their badges and identification cards.

The items belonged to Harry D. Elshire, 55, and his son, Harry D. Elshire III, 25. The Elshiers were in New Orleans on vacation when their motor home was broken into and the badges, cards and $3,000 in other belongings were stolen.

Little progress

Sheriff's homicide detectives today reported they have made little progress in their investigation of the slaying Wednesday afternoon in La Puente of Robert Joe Rios, 30.

Rios, of 15559 Blackwood St., was found lying on a La Puente street, stabbed several times. He was taken to County-USC Medical Center where he died about three hours later.

Rios was stabbed during a fight involving several men at Main and Leverett streets, deputies said. No arrests have been made.

Montclair's Hayes talks to TCIC

Set high development standards and get an experienced attorney.

That was the advice given some 20 residents of three communities who chose to hear a valley mayor suggesting how to start a city rather than two Presidential candidates debating how to run a country Thursday night.

The residents were attending a regularly scheduled meeting of the Tri-Community Incorporation Committee (TCIC) that is looking into the feasibility of incorporating the communities of Alta Loma, Cucamonga and Etiwanda into one city.

The TCIC has run into opposition in the past from citizen groups who favor incorporation of the communities separately. That opposition was not apparent at Thursday night's meeting however.

Montclair Mayor Harold Hayes spoke to the group on some of the advantages and problems faced in incorporation.

He told a brief history of Montclair's, incorporation and how citizens can "learn a lot from other cities' experiences."

Hayes emphasized the importance of a city setting high development standards in order to control the types of developments to be built.

"This is the key to having the type of community you want," he said.

The mayor also pointed out that some of the legal aspects of incorporating, such as the type of government, types of services, and tax issues require the help of an attorney.

"It is important that you get an attorney or law firm that is experienced in the area of municipal government," he declared.

Present plans of the TCIC are to set up an executive board in the near future to deal more specifically with some of the issues faced in the incorporation effort. They expect a vote on the issue by citizens of the three communities to be held in June 1977.

Debate coaches give slight edge to Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four members of a five-member panel of college debate coaches gave a slight edge to President Ford in his debate with Jimmy Carter. The fifth gave Carter a narrow edge.

The Ford four said they leaned toward him principally because he did a better job of rebutting some of the Democratic nominee's arguments.

The five coaches from around the country scored the nationally televised event for The Associated Press using a point system similar to that used in collegiate debate competition.

Evaluating the candidates for their analysis, reasoning, evidence, organization, refutation and presentation, the coaches voted this way:

Dr. Barbara O'Connor, California State University at Sacramento, 22-19 for Ford.

Dr. Donn Parson, University of Kansas, 24-23 for Ford.

Prof. William Southworth, University of Redlands (Calif.), 27-24 for Ford.

Prof. James K. Unger, Georgetown University, Washington, D.C., 15-13 for Ford.

Prof. Melissa Maxcy Wade, Emory University, Atlanta, 22-20 for Carter.

In the first 1960 presidential debate, John F. Kennedy was generally perceived as the winner over Richard M. Nixon because of appearance and image. However, none of the five judges Thursday night gave Carter or Ford a point advantage in the presentation category, the ability to create an image of competence and leadership.

The four panelists who thought Ford won particularly gave him an edge on handling the tax and bureaucracy questions.

"Ford pushed it to him on the tax cuts and bureaucracy cuts," said Dr. O'Connor. "Carter has answers on those things but he never gave them."

Southworth particularly gave Ford credit for his remark at the end of the tax discussion that the tax structure objected to by Carter was enacted by a primarily Democratic Congress.

Unger, the most critical of the panelists, said the refutations in general "seemed to be primarily directed to what the candidates hoped their opponents would say, rather than what their opponents did say. Certainly, though, President Ford seemed to be superior at this level of argument."

Parson thought Ford particularly scored with his argument that Carter can't complain both about Ford's vetoes of spending bills and about the budget deficit.

Professor Wade gave Carter the edge on the basis that he was more responsive than the President in more areas, scored well on the inflation-jobs topic, and because Ford often responded on the basis of proposals rather than his record.

The judges all found the candidates somewhat nervous at the outset. Southworth thought Carter "really lacked the enthusiasm and zing he normally has in his delivery. In an area where I thought Carter would dominate, he really didn't."

Unger, who adapted an American Forensic Association ballot form that was used by the panel, was the only judge to award any grades of "poor" on the 1-to-5 point system for each category.

He gave each candidate only one point for organization, which he said was "characterized by stream of consciousness; facts tend to stream by like cars of a train with no caboose in sight."

He found reasoning "notable by its absence," and said that "in fight terms, both debaters were overtrained, overcautious, and overcoached. Neither took the chances necessary to give the debate the electricity of 1960."

HOW THE COACHES CALLED IT

This is how five college debate coaches judged the Ford-Carter debate for the Associated Press. The figures in each category are an average of the points awarded by the five judges. Ford earned a slight edge.

watching it on television, covered economic issues and domestic policy.

The candidates fielded 12 questions from a panel of three reporters. The topics ranged from unemployment, inflation and taxes to amnesty, government reorganization and domestic spying by government agencies.

Carter described Ford as insensitive to the plight of the unemployed and said that the President's 56 vetoes since he took office represented a "government of stalemate."

At the outset of the debate, Ford accused Carter of failing to be specific in his proposals. The President said his Democratic opponent was advocating programs calling for "more spending, bigger deficits, more inflation and more taxes."

The second debate is scheduled for Oct. 6 in San Francisco and will cover foreign policy and national security. A third, with no limitation on the subject matter, will be held Oct. 22. The vice presidential candidates, Sens. Walter F. Mondale, D-Minn., and Bob Dole, R-Kan., will debate sometime the week of Oct. 11.

But the candidates and their advisers felt the first debate would be the one likely to have the most lasting impression on the voters and the one to set a pattern for the others.

Members of Carter's staff had said they felt the former Georgia governor should avoid strongly worded, direct attacks on Ford which voters might resent as showing disrespect for the presidency.

Nonetheless, the Democratic candidate took Ford to task for what he said was a lack of leadership and blamed the Republican administration for what he said was a variety of economic ills.

The moderator for the debate, sponsored by the League of Women Voters, was Edwin Newman of NBC. The questioners were Frank Reynolds of ABC television, Elizbeth Drew of the New Yorker, and James P. Gannon of the Wall Street Journal.

The two candidates stood behind chest-high lecterns. During the opening minutes of the confrontation, their voices sounded strained.

Hamilton Jordan, Carter's campaign manager, said later, "I thought Jimmy was a little nervous at first and started a little slow." Jordan added that he thought that later Carter "took command of the debate."

Jordan's assessment was as expected as that of White House Press Secretary Ron Nessen, who said, "We compared notes on the President's staff and came to the conclusion that he had won — and that he had won ... by a wide margin."

Carter brother ignores debate

PLAINS, Ga. (AP) — While brother Jimmy debated President Ford in Philadelphia, Billy Carter said he was going home to bed.

"I don't care anything about the debate," Billy Carter said a few hours before the nationally televised confrontation began Thursday night.

London papers headline debate

LONDON (AP) — Accounts of the President Ford-Jimmy Carter television debate covered front pages of London's evening newspapers here today, but there was no immediate editorial comment.

The London Evening Standard headlined "Ford Wins — But On Points" over a report of public opinion poll samplings taken in the United States after the debate.

Jeremy Campbell, the newspaper's Washington correspondent, wrote: "The debate tended to deteriorate into a duel with statistics a weapon of choice. Both men kept up an interminable barrage of figures, percentages of gross national product, billions of surplus dollars in fiscal year this or that."

The Evening News headline read, "The Big Debate Even Has Ford Yawning." It said the verdict of most viewers was that a 90-minute confrontation between two men in dark suits was "dull and boring."

Old magic in Harmony

NEW HARMONY, Ind. (AP) — This historic small town, founded in 1814 as an "idealist community," and now revitalized as an important Midwestern cultural center, has added some magic moments for visitors to its historic restoration district.

An 1823 brick house, carefully restored on the outside, contains a circular, electronic scale-model of the town of New Harmony, exactly as it existed in 1824, complete to virtually the last tree and grapevine. As visitors watch, narration, Harmonist music and lighting effects tell the story of the town, while the model revolves, showing an entire day — in miniature — of the Harmonist community.

New Harmony was among the first towns in America with a free public library, kindergarten, coed public schools and chartered women's club.

I did veto, the Congress has added some $13 billion to the federal expenditures and to the federal deficit. ... If it is true that there will be a $60 billion surplus by fiscal year 1981, rather than spend that money for all the new programs ... I think the American taxpayer ought to get an additional tax break. ... In the last 24 months, we've turned the economy around. ... We feel that with the programs that I have recommended, the additional $10 billion tax cut, with the moderate increases in the quality of life area, we can still have a balanced budget which I will submit to the Congress in January of 1978. ..."

REORGANIZATION

CARTER: "... If I'm elected president that's going to be a top priority of mine to completely revise the structure of the federal government to make it economical, efficient, purposeful and manageable for a change. ... I can't say for sure that we would have fewer federal employes when I get out of office than when I came in. ... (When I was governor of Georgia) we shifted people out of administrative jobs into the field to deliver better services. The same thing would be done at the federal government level. ..."

FORD: "I think the record should show ... that the Bureau of Census ... indicates that in the four years that Gov. Carter was governor of the state of Georgia, expenditures by the government went up over 50 per cent. Employes of the government in Georgia during his term of office went up over 25 per cent. ... The first order I issued after I became president was to cut, or eliminate, the prospective 40,000 increase in federal employes that had been scheduled by my predecessor. And in the term that I've been president, some two years, we have reduced federal employment by 11,000. ..."

AMNESTY

FORD: "I am against an across-the-board pardon of draft evaders or military deserters. In the case of Mr. Nixon ... it seemed to me that if I was to adequately and effectively handle the problem of high inflation, a growing recession, the involvement of the United States still in Vietnam, that I had to give 100 per cent of my time to those two major problems. Mr. Nixon resigned in disgrace. ... It seemed to me that Mr. Nixon had been penalized enough. ..."

CARTER: "I don't advocate amnesty, I advocate pardon. There's a difference, in my opinion. ... Amnesty means that what you did was right. Pardon means that what you did, whether it's right or wrong, you're forgiven for it. ..."

ENERGY

CARTER: "... We've got to have a firm way to handle the energy question. The reorganization proposal that I put forth is one first step. In addition to that we need to have a realization that ... we're going to run out of oil. We shift from oil to coal. We concentrate our research and development effort on coal. ... We need to shift very strongly toward solar energy. Have strict conservation measures. And, as a last resort only, use atomic power."

FORD: "In January of 1975 I submitted ... the first comprehensive energy conservation program recommended by any president. It called for an increase in the production of energy in the United States. It called for conservation measures so that we would save the energy that we have. ... I think that you have to have greater oil and gas production, more coal production, more nuclear production. And in addition, you have to have energy conservation."

WASHINGTON

FORD: "There is a considerable anti-Washington feeling throughout the country, but I think the ... the anti-Washington feeling ... ought to be focused on the Congress. ... They spend too much money on themselves; they have too many employes; there's some question about their morality. ... I think the American people want a Republican president to check on any excesses that come out of the next Congress if it is a Democratic Congress."

CARTER: "It's not a matter of Republican and Democrat, it's a matter of leadership or no leadership. ... I don't think it's the Congress that's Mr. Ford's opponent. But if he insists that I be responsible for the Democratic Congress, of which I have not been a part, then I think it's only fair that he be responsible for the Nixon administration in its entirety, of which he was a part."

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD

CARTER: "The president ought to have a chance to appoint the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board to have a coterminous term, in other words both of them serve the same four years. ... I would not want to destroy the independence of the Federal Reserve Board, but I do think we ought to have a cohesive economic policy, with at least the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board and the president's terms being the same. ..."

FORD: "The chairman of the Federal Reserve Board should be independent. ... It would be catastrophic if the chairman of the Federal Reserve Board became the tool of the political party that was in power. It's important for our future economic security that that job be nonpolitical and separate from the executive and the legislative branches.

INTELLIGENCE AGENCIES

FORD: "... I am the first president in 30 years who has reorganized the intelligence agencies in the federal government. ... We've done that by executive order, and I think we've tightened it up, we've straightened out their problems that developed over the last few years. It doesn't seem to me that it's needed or necesary to have legislation in this particular regard. ..."

CARTER (Whose answer was interrupted by a break in the audio system): One of the very serious things that's happened in our government ... is the breakdown in the trust among our people. ... There has been too much government secrecy and not enough respect for the personal privacy of American citizens."

TRUST

CARTER: "Its's a time for unity. It's a time to draw ourselves together. ... We need to have a government that is sensitive to our people's needs. ... We need to restore the faith and the trust of the American people in their own government. I don't claim to know all the answers, but I've got confidence in my country."

FORD: "I think the real issue in this campaign and that which you must decide Nov. 2 is whether you should vote for his (Carter's) promises or my performance. ... We must make this next century the century of the individual. We should never forget that a government big enough to give us everything we want is a government big enough to take from us everything we have."

Californians' reactions...

won, 30 per cent said Carter won and 36 per cent said nobody did.

The poll of 825 homes found preference following party lines, but a higher percentage of Democrats favored Ford than did Republicans who thought Carter won.

Of 180 Republicans, 57 per cent gave the edge to Ford, 15 per cent to Carter, and 28 per cent said it was a draw. Of 130 Independent Party or minor party members called, the President was favored as winner by a 30 to 22 per cent margin, with 48 per cent undecided.

In the San Francisco Bay Area, a slight nod went to Carter over Ford by a handful of recognized political observers, scholars and communications experts on questions involving effectiveness of delivery.

"The final assessment of the listener would be Carter over Ford, I think," thought Prof. Fred Stripp, director of forensics, lecturer in rhetoric and debate team coach for the University of California at Berkeley.

He said Carter appeared the winner in the discussions of energy, taxation and amnesty. He gave Ford good marks for general performance, but thought he flopped in closing, calling it "flat and uninspired."

Seymour Martin Lipset, professor of political science and sociology at Stanford University and a senior research fellow at the Hoover Institute, disagreed about the closing. He said Ford did better.

Lipset reckoned the question-and-answer exchanges fairly even, but thought both men "missed opportunities."

He thought Ford should have hit Carter harder on Democratic spending, but "on the other hand I was surprised Carter didn't take the opportunity to discuss Nixon and Watergate."

Berkeley novelist and Oscar-winning screenwriter Jeremy Larner gave credit to both men but favored Carter, saying: "I think Carter came out better, but Ford wasn't as dumb as people say."

Larner, who wrote the screenplay of "The Candidate," and speeches for Sen. Eugene McCarthy's campaign for the presidential nomination in 1968, said, "Carter stumbled at times. He fell behind when he couldn't come back stronger on the Nixon pardon. That was the most suspenseful part of debate." He thought Carter appeared "more human" and "Ford looked mean."

That assessment was disputed by Leone Baxter, cofounder with her late husband, Clem, of the politically oriented public relations firm of Whitaker & Baxter.

She found both men "impressive" but thought "the President made a better presentation than the governor. I was surprised that the governor wasn't more nimble in his repartee. It seemed to me the President gave a better exposition of the facts and his intentions, and of what he knows."

Veteran California political campaign manager Don Bradley, a Democratic strategist, gave all the orchids to Carter, finding him tops on all points.

Stuart Hyde, chairman of the Department of Broadcast and Communications Arts at San Francisco State University, gave Carter a slight edge, saying the Democratic contender scored heavily in the rebuttal while Ford came out "insensitive" on unemployment.

Hyde said that technically, Carter came out slightly ahead on makeup because the top of Ford's head looked shiny and his face pasty.

Both were scored even on lighting.

On clothing, Hyde scored Carter ahead and spanked the chief executive for wearing a polkadot tie and light shirt.

On microphone technique, he found them both equally good, speaking with "the kind of intimacy TV requires."

Carter scored on camera because he maintained better eye contact, said Hyde.

On speech articulation, Hyde jumped on Carter for not moving his lips, tongue and jaw enough, but he thought Carter scored by seeming to weigh questions before answering.

Everybody was incredulous over the mysterious breakdown in the sound system.

CARL E. GROUNDS

Youth now an Eagle Scout

Carl Edward Grounds, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Grounds of Brea, was advanced to the rank of Eagle Scout during recent court of honor ceremonies conducted by Boy Scout Troop 777, Diamond Bar.

Grounds, an honor student at Brea Olinda High School, joined the scouting movement as a Cub in 1969. He earned all 15 activity badges and was graduated to scouting with the Arrow of Light into Troop 415 of San Gabriel.

He moved to Troop 777 as a First Class scout and continued his activities as a counselor at Cub Scout day camp at Firestone Scout Reservation and Cabrillo Sea Base.

He earned the mile swim award four times, served two years on the Buckskin staff, earned scout lifeguard rating and filled many troop offices. Grounds competes in roller skating events in Fullerton.

Smallpox targeted

The Mercy Airlift department of World Gospel Crusades of Upland is assisting the official program for the eradication of smallpox throughout the world.

C. Mervin Russell, president of the Mercy Airlift, said the only reported existence of smallpox in the world today is a small pocket of the disease which is present in Ethiopa. The airlift's DC-3 cargo plane stationed in Ethiopa has flown staff members as well as 37,000 pounds of food and medicine for the program into the area.

In addition, Mercy Airlift's plane is flying in the fuel for the helicopters used in the eradication program, Russell reported.

He added that many of the small villages which have reported cases of smallpox can be reached only by helicopters.

"Once this pocket of smallpox has been removed, the disease will be officially eradicated from the world," Russell said.

The Mercy Airlift DC-3 has been stationed in Ethiopia for 15 months and has flown over one-half million pounds of food and medicines in an effort to curb famine and disease in that country.

During August alone, the airlift cargo plane flew 115,700 pounds of emergency supplies to remote areas in the African nation.

Clinic slated

A special blood pressure clinic jointly sponsored by the Chino Fire Department paramedics and Chino General Hospital is scheduled for Oct. 9.

Chino General Hospital nurse Candace MacSween said the clinic will be held from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. and will be free to the public. Mrs. MacSween said persons will have an opportunity not only to have their blood pressure taken and a electrocardiogram (EKG) strip made by nurses and paramedics, but also to view the latest paramedic equipment used by the Chino Fire Department.

Mrs. MacSween said persons coming in for the tests will also be able to ask any questions about the paramedic program.

LaVerne Mounted Police field day

Members of the La Verne Mounted Police will present their second annual field day Oct. 2 and 3 at the Jay and Jay Ranch in the Marshall Canyon area.

The La Verne unit has invited all mounted police groups in the Southland to compete in such events as horseback basketball, barrel races, the carpet race and shooting competition.

First event starts Saturday at 8 a.m. Grand Marshal overseeing the events will be Will Hutchins, star of "Sugarfoot."

Dave Webb and his Solid Ground will furnish music for dancing Saturday night.

Suit against motel

Montclair man, 20, awarded $250,000

A 20-year-old Montclair man has been awarded nearly $250,000 in a lawsuit against the Ramada Inns of America by a Flagstaff, Ariz. Superior Court jury.

The man, Dale Cockrell, was 16 when he suffered an electrical shock after getting out of a swimming pool and opening up a soda pop machine at the Flagstaff Ramada Inn. Young Cockrell's eyesight was severely damaged by the shock that left him with cataracts in the eyes. He and his mother were vacationing in Arizona at the time.

Cockrell was represented by Richard G. Anderson, an Upland attorney, and the Flagstaff law firm of Magnum, Wall and Stoops in the court case.

Anderson said there was a short in the soda pop machine and when Cockrell, wet from being in the swimming pool, touched the door he became a conduit for the electricity.

In court, Anderson maintained that the Ramada Inns negligently maintained and allowed a dangerous condition to exist.

During the eight day trial that ended Sept. 15 Anderson presented 19 witnesses, including a number of doctors who testified that the electrical shock definitely caused Cockrell to suffer eye cataracts.

Cockrell graduated with honors at Montclair High School where he was a star on the swimming team in 1974.

Gonce to attend management parley

Pomona City Administrator Jerrold Gonce will participate beginning Sunday at the International City Management Association Conference in Toronto, Canada.

Gonce is a member of the organization's committee studying fire services master planning.

The conference will continue about one week.

City funding of the trip totals about $600.

Shinto priests due in Claremont

Thirty-two Shinto priests and scholars from Japan will present books on their religion to the Claremont Colleges Tuesday during a visit to the United States.

Claremont will be the first official stop after the group arrives in Los Angeles from Tokyo.

President Joseph B. Platt of the Claremont University Center will accept the scholarly material for the libraries of the colleges during a 2 p.m. ceremony.

The ceremony in the Founders Room of Honnold Library will be followed by a reception.

The Blaisdell Institute, an affiliate of the colleges, was the sponsor. The institute is dedicated to the study of world cultures and religions.

St. Madeleine is registering

Registration for St. Madeleine School of Religion is continuing this week at the rectory, 935 E. Kingsley Ave., Pomona.

Boys and girls enrolled in public school may attend these classes.

Grades one through six have classes on Saturdays from 9:30 to 11 a.m. Junior high and high school classes are held Mondays from 6:45 to 8 p.m.

Seventh, eighth and ninth grade students desiring to receive the Sacrament of Confirmation in the spring of 1978 must register now for the first year of preparation.

Two years of preparation must be completed before receiving Sacrament, school officials said.

Additional information concerning this class may be obtained by calling Sister Carolyn Louise, coordinator, at the St. Madeleine Rectory.

Here's the answer

Q. — We had our septic tank cleaned out six months ago. The cleaner said it would last two years. Now there is a seepage above ground between the house and the septic tank, closer to the house than the tank. There is no backup of sewage into the basement plumbing fixtures. Can you tell me what is causing the seepage?

A. — An on-the-spot analysis is the only way the exact cause can be determined and even that will depend on some probing and digging. But the fact that the seepage is occurring closer to the house than the tank — and presumably on the line where the house pipe to the tank is located — is a fair indication that there is a break in the underground pipe.

Q. — In putting up a wall of mirror tiles, some of the tiles will have to be cut to fit around certain obstructions. Do I need a special tool for cutting these tiles?

A. — No. Use an ordinary, inexpensive glass cutter, the same kind used to cut out glass for windows. If you haven't used such a cutter in the past, better practice first on scrap glass. Hold the cutter almost perpendicular to the glass while cutting.

Q. — I intend to put up solid board panels in our basement by nailing them directly to studs with finishing nails. How long should the nails be?

A. — Long enough to extend at least ¾ths of an inch into the studs.

Q. — I have recently taken up decoupage, which I am sure you know is cutting out and pasting pictures to various objects. I have been using white glue, as recommended in a book on the subject. Most of the time I get good results, using a mixture of shellac and denatured alcohol as the first coat, then putting on three coats of varnish. Every so often, I find that, after pasting on the picture, there are air bubbles in it. What causes this and what can I do about it?

A. — To get good contact between the paper and the object, use pressure at the center, then work out toward the edges. This is true whether you use a roller or your hands. When a bubble forms, despite your best efforts, make a slit in the paper with a razor blade at the center of the bubble. Apply a little glue to the end of a toothpick and very carefully rub the glue under the cut edges of the paper. Press down firmly. It is important that not too much glue be applied; better too little than too much.

Q. — What's the difference between a "snake" and a steel spring auger used for cleaning drains?

A. — The term "snake" is used for the long wire with a hook at one end. The auger is much the same except that it has a crank handle at one end. When the corkscrew end is pushed into the drain opening, the crank handle is turned clockwise, producing a boring action. The words "snake" and auger are often used interchangeably.

To have a colorful winter, plan now for indoor garden

Progress Bulletin home & garden

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

You can have colorful flowers in your home this winter if you prepare now for indoor forcing. Excellent items are hyacinths, daffodils, crocus and tulips, all of which you should also be thinking now about planting outdoors.

To begin with, you need good bulbs. Plump ones are best, since the bulbs contain the food they need for successful blooming. Small bulbs don't have enough food for the long haul.

Bulbs should be potted in October. Be sure the pots have good drainage. You need not be concerned much about fertilizer, but remember that inadequate drainage brings limited root growth and possible bulb rot.

For successful forcing, three temperature situations are needed. One is for root growth, the second for flower development, and the third for flowering.

For root development, the potted bulbs need 45 to 50 degrees. Place the pots outdoors at least three weeks before a hard freeze may be expected. This will give good root growth. The pots should be in a cool, shaded spot, for example, the north side of a building. About four weeks of this is recommended, but don't permit freezing.

For stage two — flower development — a temperature of 35 to 40 degrees is desirable, with 40 degrees ideal. Leave bulbs in this temperature for about eight weeks. An old refrigerator in the basement is a good spot.

For stage three, 60 degrees is fine and that's bow the bulbs should be kept until flower buds are well developed.

City dwellers may ave the most trouble finding the proper temperature conditions. The outdoors is the most likely place for stage one. A cool, unheated room or garage could be the place. An unheated basement or storage cellar could do for the second stage. Perhaps you can make room for a few small pots in a corner of the kitchen refrigerator. A cold frame filled with straw, leaves or sawdust could be utilized.

If you have no facilities, put a few plants beside the house foundation, cover with soil, straw or other mulching material, cover with a basket or box, and hope for the best. You can bring them indoors after 12 to 14 weeks.

Fall Fertilizing

Fertilize your trees in the fall and give them a good watering before the ground freezes hard. This will help sustain them with food and drink against wind, sleet and alternate thawing and freezing.

Fertilize your trees in the fall to permit them to absorb the food by the roots while the tree or shrub is dormant. It is like putting food in storage.

Water evergreen shrubs thoroughly and whenever the soil thaws during winter.

If you kill broadleaf weeds in the fall you will reduce the number of weeds that will germinate during wet periods next spring and summer.

Hall of fame rift stirred

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Hollywood Chamber of Commerce is fighting to keep what it considers interlopers out of its proposed Hollywood Hall of Fame Museum.

The Chamber of Commerce sought a court injunction Wednesday against Douglas Wright, director of the Motion Picture Hall of Fame and founder of his own Hollywood Hall of Fame.

The chamber is accusing Wright of infringing on what it terms its exclusive legal right to use the hall of fame name. The chamber said that it registered the name with the city of Los Angeles in September 1975. In February of 1976, Wright began distributing literature promoting his own Hollywood museum and claiming to be its founder and president.

The chamber's lawyer said Wright's use of the name was an effort to deceive donors to the chamber's proposed museum.

More women using chain saws

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

By the end of this year, more than 2 million chain saws will have been sold since January 1st.

About 66 per cent will have been sold to nonprofessionals, nearly all of them home owners.

About 316,000 of the saws will have been sold to women!

Those are interesting industry figures — with the most intriguing the statistics about female purchasers. They just didn't seem correct. More than 316,000 women in the United States using chain saws? It couldn't be. Then the light dawned. There weren't that many women using such saws; merely that many buying them, which is a far different thing.

Anyway, let's check and find out. A telephone call to Homelite brings a clarification from the company's marketing vice president, Franklin Maddux.

"Yes," he says, "it has been discovered that 24 per cent of all consumer chain saws are being purchased by women. That's where those 316,000 figures come from. Naturally, the majority of women making the purchases are buying them for their husbands or men friends. But more and more women are using chain saws themselves to cut firewood and to clear away storm damage. We know that from the reports sent in by our dealers."

How come?

"It's just part of the trend of the age. Women are finding out that they can use power tools as easily and skillfully as men. Sales have skyrocketed since the advent of chain saws weighing less than 10 pounds and costing from $100 to $150. Also, more and more safety devices are being built into these saws. One of the latest is a simple device, weighing about an ounce, that is fitted over the nose section of the guide bar covering the sensitive area of the bar and chain where kickback reaction is generated. This eliminates kickback as a potential cause of injury."

After the phone call, a check showed that 300,000 chain saws had been sold in 1963, nearly all of them to men who made their living by cutting wood. Much earlier, lumberjacks used a type of chain saw that weighed a couple of hundred pounds and had to be handled by two men. In the late 1940s, smaller chain saws were made for use by one man, but even these weighed 30 pounds or more and had to be handled by a muscular operator.

Fix-it man works just for fun

CHENOA, Ill. (AP) — Housewives for miles around are taking their broken appliances to Loyal (Slim) Augspurger, who does fine repair work and hates to get paid for it.

Since Slim, 72, opened a fix-it shop three years ago in the basement of his home in this central Illinois community, he has repaired several thousand appliances — small ones like toasters, electric irons, fans, blenders, coffee makers and vacuum cleaners. He has a backlog of more than 100 awaiting repairs.

"I don't like to take money for what I like to do," he says. "I charge just enough to pay for some replacement parts and now and then to replace a tool. For instance, a broken $15 or $20 appliance, I'll make it run like new for around $2.50 even if I have to spend four or five hours on it. If they took it to a big store the minimum would be $6 to $8.

"I just enjoy doing it. The name of the game isn't money, it's being happy doing what you're doing. I don't need money, so I don't try to make it. I don't have the time to fool around with it, anyway."

Augspurger, who is on Social Security, says there was no pension plan when he retired after 27 years as a stone quarry superintendent. His son, Marlow, left an appliance store to open his own repair shop for large household items like refrigerators. He gave his dad an assortment of small parts.

"He left me 100 drawers and jars full of tubes, screws, transistors and other things," says Slim, who stands 6-feet-2 and weighs 150 pounds. "So I had to learn how to fix things. I just started out and learned as I went along.

"I've never had a dissatisfied customer. In fact," he adds, "some of them were so happy with my work they thought I undercharged them and mailed me more money."

Slim says his most difficult job was repairing the corroded wiring of an electric pot that a housewife had tried to clean by submerging it in a basin of water and detergent. "It took me about 10 hours to fix it. I charged $5. Such a thing is a challenge for an older person. Part of the joy of fixing is helping people in trouble out of it."

Slim also gets personal satisfaction collecting old fans with brass blades. He has 17 of them, one from 1898. "I fixed them all. It was just lovely," he said.

Get quick growth from fall planting

Look for quick strong growth from fall plantings next spring. The trend toward major plantings of everything from lawns, trees, shrubs, ground covers, and perennial flowers makes a great deal of sense in California where the soil does not freeze and roots remain active most of the year.

From the plant's point of view, fall weather is much like spring reverse sequence chronologically. The weather starts off rather warm and sunny and progressively gets cooler. The mild days of autumn are ideal for establishing young transplants or moving in larger specimens. As the days get colder, the portion of the plant above the soil line takes a rest for the winter. Meanwhile, the roots are spreading through the soil aided by the warming rains. During rainy conditions, the soils are thoroughly moistened and harmful build-up of salts is leached out and the plants may send their roots deep into the soil. This deep rooting wil be especially important in late spring and summer months when hot dry weather and rapid growth will put its demands on roots to supply at a quick pace.

The result is plants set out in the fall will need less frequent watering in the spring and summer and with their root systems already well-established, the plant can turn its attention to quick top growth.

With water such a critical resource in California, it makes good sense to let Mother Nature do most of the watering to establish plants in the landscape during the winter months. As gardeners become increasingly aware of water saving alternatives in gardening, drought resistant plants and native plant materials will become more popular in home landscapes. With more emphasis on conserving water and low maintenance, such beautiful flowering shrubs as the versatile Ceanothus, Fremontia and Manzanita will be as commonly planted as Junipers, Oleanders and Creeping Rosemary.

Perennials, annuals to plant now

Fall is a busy planting time to be sure. Gardeners are beginning to plant winter blooming annuals and at the same time are buying up perennials for dependable garden color for next spring and summer.

The selection of annuals for winter color is sure to please. Nurseries have flats and pots of bright pansies and violas, calendulas and Iceland poppies. Plant any of these annuals in sunny flower beds, window boxes or pots. Pansies will produce an abundance of color especially if the faded blooms are kept picked off. Calendulas are favorites for the intense shades of orange and yellow. Plant the dwarf varieties in borders or mass them for a grand display. Iceland Poppies are actually perennials but in the garden are treated as annuals. The showy flowers are crepe-like in texture and slightly fragrant. They should bloom around the first of the year.

On your perennial list, be sure to look for English Primroses. You can set out dozens of plants from nursery flats at low cost this fall. Blooming size, field grown clumps will be available next spring, but the cost will be proportionately higher.

Perennial Evergreen Candytuft is popular in borders as a neat edging. The green foliage is attractive year long and the white flowers which bloom from as early as November, in mild areas, to June are suitable for cutting. Delphiniums and Sweet William should also be planted this fall to assure earlier bloom next spring.

Gardeners check list

September and October are good months to put in that new lawn. Do it right! Thoroughly prepare the seed bed with soil amendments and use high quality seed. Ask your nurseryman for the best lawn varieties for your climate and needs.

Plant Cyclamen in pots or in the ground for bloom through winter and well into spring.

Give chrysanthemums another shot of liquid fish if its been at least three weeks since the last feeding. Remember, no food after the buds show color.

All types of container grown ornamental trees and shrubs can be set in now. Keep moist for first few weeks until reliable fall and winter rains begin.

Plant now in the vegetable garden: onion sets, garden peas, cabbage cauliflower, brussells sprouts, carrots, beets and turnips.

'A Yankee Doodle Dandy'

Kern County wins fair award

"Kern County — A Yankee Doodle Dandy" is the theme of the feature exhibit booth presented the California Award at the Los Angeles County Fair in progress at Pomona through Oct. 3.

The booth utilizes moving animal figures to portray scenes from early American history. For the exhibit, Kern County received a trophy and $400.

First place, $1,200 winners in the large booth category were:

—Fresno County, education exhibit featuring agriculture products and recreation.

—Glenn County, diversified exhibit featuring agricultural and horticultural products.

—San Joaquin County, educational exhibit featuring natural resources and industries.

—Siskiyou County, diversified exhibit featuring natural resources and industries.

—Tulare County, exhibit featuring recreation facilities and tourist attractions. San Bernardino County was awarded $1,000 third place in this category.

—Tuolumne County, Bicentennial exhibit featuring historical attractions.

Winners of small booth $850 first place awards are:

—Placer County, exhibit encompassing agriculture and horticulture products.

—Yolo County, educational exhibit featuring agriculture and recreation.

Solono County, diversified exhibit of agriculture and horticulture.

THESE PEOPLE ARE WORKING NIGHT AND DAY TO AVOID A POMONA UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT TEACHERS STRIKE BECAUSE IT'S THE LAST THING IN THE WORLD THEY WANT.

They are the members of the Negotiating Team of the Associated Pomona Teachers. They are full-time teaching employees in the public schools and they know what would happen in a strike: vital educational services would be cut; academic instruction would be eliminated; staff relationships would suffer for years to come; and it wouldn't be good for anyone.

BUT, what do you do when you're pushed around and continually shoved in a corner.

The Association represents over 1,000 certificated employees and has been attempting to negotiate a contract with the school district under the provisions of the Rodda Act since July. Teachers are currently working without a contract.

The District through its bargaining representative continues to demand drastic reductions in the range of rights agreed to in 1975-76 in the Pomona Agreement.

SALARY AND FRINGE BENEFITS ARE NOT THE MAIN ISSUES OF OUR DISPUTE WITH THE DISTRICT,
WE ARE WILLING TO EXPLORE EVERY AVENUE POSSIBLE TO REACH A REASONABLE AGREEMENT,

We are willing to negotiate night and day. We are prepared for mediation and fact-finding. We are even willing to submit the issues to binding arbitration before any impartial agency.

WHAT CAN YOU DO?

1. COMMUNICATE WITH YOUR ELECTED REPRESENTATIVES . . . THE MEMBERS OF THE POMONA UNIFIED SCHOOL DISTRICT BOARD OF EDUCATION.
2. BECOME INFORMED AND GET INVOLVED.
3. DISCUSS THE ISSUES WITH THE TEACHERS OF YOUR OWN CHILDREN.

Carter, Brown to make appearance

Large crowd expected at fair

Excellent fair weather with moderate clouds holding temperatures to the low 70s is predicted for the weekend as officials brace themselves for the largest attendance of the Los Angeles County Fair's 17-day run in Pomona.

Nearly 150,000 persons attended the mid-Saturday of the Los Angeles County fair last year, and the officials predicted similar numbers for both Saturday and Sunday this year.

Attendance remains slightly below that of last year for the first seven days with a total of 380,488 going through the gates this year, about 8,000 fewer than in 1975.

An added attraction likely to swell attendance Saturday will be the appearance of Presidential candidate Jimmy Carter, accompanied by Gov. Edmund Brown Jr.

A crowd pleaser Thursday was the fair's annual mother-daughter look alike contest, won by Arlene Addson of Palos Verdes and her daughter, Debbie, 12. They were awarded the sweepstakes from among nearly 60 entries in a lively contest.

Mrs. Julie Faifelick of Alta Loma and her daughter, Kim, 15, won first place in the 13-18 year classification.

Mrs. Marabell Adams of Hawthorne and her daughter, Tara, 20, won the 19 and over class, and Mrs. Judy Serna and her daughter, Dawn, 3, of Whittier, were awarded first place in the 1-6 year group.

The grandstand show will continue to feature "Up With People" through Sunday.

David Merrifield will continue his aerial show at the end of the performances.

L.A. fair attracts Aurora dancers

They did yard work, baby-sat, had spaghetti dinners, garage sales — anything to earn enough money to fly 1,500 miles from Aurora, Colo., (just outside Denver) to make two appearances on the Amphitheatre stage at the Los Angeles County Fair.

Seventeen youngsters, ranging in age from 7 to 18, are students of Marilyn's Dance Studio, operated by Marilyn Klibbe, assisted by her husband, Frank.

Their group is known as the PTL Dancers, short for "Praise the Lord," but their numbers range from modern jazz to spritual. They'll be on stage at 9 tonight and at 4 p.m. on Saturday.

The trip here began as a gag that became a reality. Last October, Marilyn called her cousin Bob Murray (public relations director for the Fair) just to wish him happy birthday. Kiddingly, he said it was too bad they were so far away and couldn't make an appearance here.

But when she presented the idea to her class, the youngsters loved the idea and talked their parents into it. Everyone worked to raise money and Aurora's 50,000 people pitched in.

So they're here, performing — and making a fun trip out of it. Disneyland, Universal Studio, the fair and a trip to the beach as most of them have never seen the ocean.

Mrs. Klibbe has been teaching the youngsters for some years. Her husband is a cartoonist who also builds and designs sets for the young entertainers who appear frequently throughout the Denver area.

YTS back to normal following breakout

While California Youth Authority investigators and Chino police continue their investigation of the Tuesday morning riot and mass escape at the Youth Training School most general activities for wards at the youth institution have resumed with no further difficulties.

YTS authorities said that most of the wards not involved in the rioting have returned to their regular vocational training and duties without incident.

The two living units, O and R and K and L, each housing about 50 wards where the rioting broke out, however, remain in a "lock down" status, with most of the wards confined to their rooms. Damage to the two living units by the rioters has been estimated between $10,000 and $15,000.

According to authorities the two living units before the rioting that left two staff members injured, housed wards considered disciplinary problems.

About 20 of the wards in the two units, including some of the escapees, have been temporarily housed at the California Institution for Men and the San Bernardino County Jail pending further investigation.

Jordon Flagg, who allegedly attacked YTS floor security supervisors Gary Cauble and Tapiri Tabasuri and freed the wards of the two living units from their cells, may be charged with attempted murder, assault with a deadly weapon, inciting to riot, and numerous other charges.

YTS authorities indicated earlier that two other wards may have participated in the attack on Cauble, who today remains in very serious condition at San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland with skull fractures and facial lacerations. The two wards have not been identified.

Of the 13 wards that used the rioting to escape from the institution, only one remains at large. He was identified as William Winters, 20, serving time for burglary and car theft.

Flagg was one of the first escapees captured by YTS and CIM officers who with the aid of a large corn harvester and sheriff's helicopters pushed their way through a cornfield Tuesday where inmates were first thought to have taken refuge. One other ward, at first believed with the escapees, was found hiding inside of the institution.

Meanwhile, the YTS rioting and mass escape has brought harsh criticism of the California Youth Authority and its director Allen Breed from the California Correctional Officers Association (CCOA) and some CYA officials themselves.

The CCOA announced Thursday that it would present CYA officials a list of demands next week in Sacramento.

The list will include demands that officers in the towers and transportation officers be armed; that personnel working inside be equipped with emergency alarm systems and other safety equipment; that the YTS telephone system be modified for use as a warning device; that YTS staff be allowed access to prisoner's lockers; that staff be given opportunity to participate in administrative decisions; and that overall custody control, including an adequate key distribution policy, be established.

The CCOA will also be demanding an immediate abolishment of current policy which in effect allows the inmate population to discipline staff, and in its place adoption of policies which returns disciplinary control to personnel, said CCOA spokesmen.

A CYA official, Art German, in Sacramento said Thursday that a $65,000 personal radio alarm system installed at YTS last June was not operating at the time of the mass escape on Tuesday morning.

He said if the system had been working "It might have prevented the breakout."

German said that such systems were operating at other CYA facilities but the one at YTS "has never been activated because of technical difficulties.

German, however indicated that the "super discipline" suggested by the CCOA would never work at YTS, because "prison by nature is a rough tense place." He said that many tensions building up among the wards have been difused by present policies, including a grievance procedure in which wards can appeal any disciplinary action taken by staff members to higher authorities or to an outside group.

German said that despite the many incentives designed to allow the ward to participate in the programs, now and in the future, there will never be a time when trouble is not a possibility at YTS.

LOOK ALIKES

Mrs. Arlene Addson of Palos Verdes, left, and her daughter, Debbie, 12, right, are greeted by Mary Frances Douglas, queen of the 1976 Los Angeles County Fair, after the Addsons won sweepstakes in the fair's mother-daughter look alike contest Thursday night.

Injured youth listed 'fair'

A 16-year-old youth who was hit by a car while crossing a La Puente street Wednesday morning, remained in fair condition today in County-USC Medical Center.

Sheriff's deputies said that the victim, Alfonso Molina, was struck while he was in a pedestrian crosswalk at Hacienda Boulevard and Pritchard Street. He suffered a head injury and a broken pelvis.

Bus service to fair cut down

Residents in the West End of San Bernardino County will be offered Omnitrans bus service to the Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona only for Saturday and Monday unless the Rapid Transit District strike continues.

Omnitrans had run hourly bus service between the West End communities and the fair, but officials decided to drop the route because of a low ridership.

Service, however, is being extended to Saturday because of the large number of passengers the previous Saturday and on Monday, which is Senior Citizen Day at the fair.

Bus routes will start both days at Central Avenue and Moreno Street near the Montclair Plaza. Buses will then proceed south on Central, east on Palo Verde Street to Fifth Street and Mountain Avenue in Ontario. Busses will go north on Mountain to eighth street in Upland and then west to the fair. Passengers will be picked up at regular bus stops along the route.

The first bus will leave Montclair at 10:35 a.m.; with later buses departing at 3:35, 6:35 and 8:35 p.m. The fare is 25 cents each, except those with the Omnitrans senior citizen passes. They ride free.

No passengers will be picked up or dropped off in Los Angeles County except at the fair. Bus passengers will be picked up and dropped off at the fairgrounds' gate G.

Buses will leave the fairgrounds for return trips to the West End at 11:15 a.m., 4:15, 7:15 and 9:15 p.m.

A decision operating the fair route the following weekend will be made later, said John Batson, Omnitran's field supervisor. One factor involved in that decision will be if the RTD bus drivers are still on strike, he added.

Enrichment classes set for gifted at MSAC

GAME FOR THE GIFTED

Three gifted children puzzle over a chess problem, showing their preferences for enrichment. Thirty classes are being offered this fall for the gifted at Mt. San Antonio and Citrus colleges. Shown here are Billy Wieck, left, of Diamond Bar, Aaron Cole of Claremont and Nicole Leland of Diamond Bar. An enrollment of more than 450 children is expected.

Thirty classes in enrichment will be offered this fall to the valley's gifted children by Mt. San Antonio and Citrus colleges.

The classes will start Oct. 11 and will run from 3:30 to 5 p.m. daily. Registration is now under way through Sunday.

Parents of the gifted children must file their applications with the Gifted Children's Association of the Foothills by Sunday afternoon. Those who want more information may telephone Mrs. Diane Manson at 599-3390.

The courses will run for eight weeks. Children select them according to their interests and grade levels.

Scheduled for this semester are instructions in basic chess, stones, bones and dinosaurs, French, drama workshop, astronomy and space science, magic, baton twirling, photography, computers, and karate.

Most classes will be limited to 16 children.

Palomares center offers classes

A variety of classes and activities will be offered starting Saturday at the Palomares Community Center in Pomona.

Included will be beginning woodcarving, plant care, rollerskating, adventure club, women's and men's physical conditioning, preschool and education through recreation.

Classes are for an eight to 10-week period. Some require a nominal fee.

For further information, persons may call 620-2301 or 620-2321. Space is limited and will be given on a first come, first served basis.

Jury selection begins in L.V. murder trial

Jury selection has begun in Pomona Superior Court in the murder trial of a San Gabriel man charged with killing his estranged wife and her male companion inside her apartment in La Verne Feb. 22.

The panel was being chosen in the courtroom of Judge Sam Cianchetti. The trial is expected to take two to five weeks.

The defendant is Don Merrill Fitzjohn, 30. The victims were Mrs. Jeannie Beth Fitzjohn, 30, and Gary Ernest Keitz, 35. Both were shot to death inside Mrs. Fitzjohn's apartment at 2421 Foothill Blvd.

Police reported that after the slayings Fitzjohn left the apartment with his two children and later turned himself into an Irwindale police officer friend of his who lives in West Covina.

The children, Sandy, 6, and Heather, 3, lived with their mother and were in the apartment when the double-killing occurred, investigators said.

Fitzjohn has been held in jail without bail since his arrest that Sunday.

False heroism no aid to cause

So now we know, thanks to five ever-so-polite airplane hijackers (who happened to leave a not-so-polite bomb behind them in New York that killed one policeman), that there is a Croatian independence movement in Yugoslavia.

Just as we learned, if we didn't know it before, that there is a nationalist movement among some Puerto Ricans, thanks to the bombing of Fraunces Tavern in New York, which killed four people.

And as we became aware that there is some kind of nationalist unrest in Indonesia, thanks to terrorists who commandeered a train in the Netherlands and shot a few people.

And, of course, as Palestinian terrorists keep reminding us, that there are certain unresolved questions in the Middle East.

Who will be the next "heroes," as Croation expatriates in this country are calling the hijackers, to bring their cause to the attention of the world?

It is ironic that the Croatians are struggling against the oppressive rule of the Serbian majority in that multi-ethnic conglomeration called Yugoslavia.

It was a Serbian student — no doubt another otherwise polite young man and another hero — who assassinated the Archduke Ferdinand in 1914 to protest against the oppressive rule of the Austro-Hungarian empire, thereby setting off the chain reaction which led to the First World War, which only set the stage for the even more catastrophic Second World War.

Fortunately, it takes more than an assassination or a bombing or a hijacking or some ancient European grievance to launch a general war these days. The toll of human lives sacrificed on the altar of nationalism by the terrorists is counted merely in the ones or twos or tens, not the scores of millions.

Croatian refugees who are exultant over the publicity the hijacking received should reflect that it was a two-days' wonder which most people have already forgotten about. In the final analysis, it has injured their cause rather than helped it, and created more disgust than sympathy among the vast body of Americans, whose generosity in giving the Croatians a base from which to continue their political agitation has been grievously abused.

"The strike ain't doin' much for THIS Ford pickup, either!"

Doc Peirsol
Just in jest

In 1908 a Parisian newspaper predicted, "If the same degree of progress is made in aviation during the coming two years that has been made in the two just passed, flights of 20 minutes will be lengthened into flights of as many days."

To which wild flight of fancy the Pomona Daily Progress editor decided it was necessary to take issue editorially to prove to his readers there were still some sane people left in this world despite the "flighty" French. And so, in rebuttal he wrote:

"It is a sanguine view to take but it is not likely to command ready acceptance from any except the most zealous believers in the possibility of man navigating the air with the same facility that he does terra firma or the ocean."

And now, only 68 years later, wouldn't it be delightful if we could retrogress in time and get that 1908 Pomona Progress editor's comments on today's predictions of permanent space stations and even space colonies by the year 2,000? — But on second thought, instead of commenting, he would probably put in a hurry call to Constable Slanker to come and rescue him from a possible escapee from the State insane asylum.

The public forum
Ordination of women deplored

Dear Editor:

In America one can divide protestant churches into two main classes. There is the "policeman" and the "salesman." In the first the officiating priest stands firmly and uncompromisingly in the pulpit garbed in the symbolic clothing of his profession and presents the law in its purity and truth. He refuses to compromise in any way and would even suffer or die rather than permit the tradition or the direction of the church to be violated.

On the other hand the "salesman" has his chief strength in charm. The minister wears a business suit and a bright necktie. He smiles, shakes your hand warmly, and tells you pretty much what you want to hear. His unctuous words can be very soothing and ingratiating.

For over two centuries the Episcopal Church in America has been an outstanding example of the former. Its traditions have remained unbroken since the fourth century. Its basic liturgy comes from the Book of Common Prayer which, with exceedingly minor revisions dates from before the time of the King James Bible. Generations of Americans have been Episcopalians and have looked to the church for guidance and comfort. Now with a swiftness that has stunned and broken the hearts of many of its followers the Episcopal Church has been destroyed, never to be a source of strength or guidance in America again. And with its destruction something exceedingly precious and significant has been removed from American culture. By "hard-fought behind-the-scenes political maneuvering" a determined activistic body has infiltrated the body of the church and by a tiny margin forced a vote approving one of the last things it needed: Ordination of women to the Episcopal priesthood. This was followed up by the replacement of the Book of Common Prayer with a weird document written in some kind of basic English and full of flaws. (For example "put us not to the test" instead of "lead us not into temptation.") There is more, of course.

The Episcopal church first reeled when priests used their offices to gain publicity for their participation in "freedom marches." And after Bishop Pike got national publicity for his spirit rappings and other bizarre types of conduct and when the glossolalia craze gained psudo-approval as a tenet of the Episcopal Church. Dismayed and alienated worshippers began to stay away in crowds. Now the final blow has been struck and the Episcopal congregation will lose its power forever to influence American religious thought.

There is no way the church will ever function again as a unit, and as a matter of practical fact it will not. Nor is there any practical way it can regain its forever lost respect. It is too bad. Old people like myself do not like to see things die. It reminds us that our life is mostly past and that soon we ourselves will be gone. But still it is a pity. The Episcopal church, like so many institutions and traditions that have fallen recently, could have been a source of guidance to the American people. Perhaps that was why it was destroyed.

State budgets go up, up, up

By EARL G. WATERS

Californians who may have been shocked a quarter century ago when Governor Earl Warren presented the state with its first billion dollar budget can brace themselves for a $20 billion budget by 1980! It will be a far cry from the days 60 years ago when total state spending during a year was a mere $30 million. The Legislature spends twice that amount now on itself.

This will happen no matter how bravely Governor Jerry Brown tries to maintain his "era of limits". He has been wrestling all this month with nearly 1,000 legislative bills seeking to weed out those which will cost money. But he is destined to end his four year term with a state budget in excess of $15 billion or 50 per cent higher than when he took office. Already state spending stands at an estimated $12.5 billion.

That won't make him the biggest spender in the state's history. At the moment that dubious honor goes to Governor Ronald Reagan who, despite his "cut, trim and squeeze" posture, increased state spending 168.8 per cent during his eight-year term. Before that the only governor to more than double state spending in eight years was Earl Warren who raised the budget 114.3 per cent in eight years and added another 26.4 per cent in the three years of his third term.

Looking back over the 60 year period the "big-spenders" in addition to Reagan and Warren were Governors William D. Stephens who, from 1917 to 1923, raised expenditures 88.8 per cent; Friend W. Richardson, who upped spending by 51.2 per cent in 4 years and Frank F. Merriam who increased the budget 55 per cent in four years. Governor Pat Brown experienced a 96.6 per cent spending increase but it took him eight years to do it.

Of course, during that time the population has grown from 3 million to over 20 million and inflation has been a significant factor. Neither however fully account for the dramatic rises in state government costs.

For example, population growth was practically at a standstill during the Reagan years and, although inflation was soaring it was nowhere near the 168.8 increase in state spending.

Probably the largest single contributing factor to the spectacular rise from under $4 billion to $10 billion in state spending under Reagan was the shift of property taxes whereby the state reimburses local government for home owner exemptions and the new state responsibility to reimburse local governments for additional costs caused by legislatively mandated programs. Also increased aid to schools has added substantially. These, of course, now operate to up the budget for Governor Brown and all future governors regardless of any inclinations they may have to reduce spending.

Those who in the past best managed to stave off government's tendency to grow were C.C. Young with only a 40.6 per cent rise in 4 years; James Rolph who held the budget growth to 36.5 per cent for four years and Goodwin J. Knight who kept it to 36.4 per cent in five years.

By the strange quirks which build a governor's image, the one who was under constant criticism for being a spendthrift, Culbert L. Olson, actually was the only one who managed to reverse the tide and reduce state spending by 3.5 per cent during his four-year term. But then Olson had a lot of help from an antagonistic Legislature which formed an "economy bloc" and refused to appropriate anything more than bare bones.

From the year 1939 to 1943 Olson ran the state on just over $250 million a year. Generously conceding that state costs should rise in direct ratio to population growth would only now triple that cost. Attributing the $12.5 billion budget to population rise and inflation alone would mean an inflation factor of 1666.6 per cent in the past 30 years. U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics show today's dollar to be 30 per cent of the 1940 dollar. On that basis inflation has been only about 310 per cent since Olson's days.

DDC still doing fine

This year, librarians around the world are observing the centennial of the Dewey Decimal Classification (DDC) system — those familiar numbers identifying books, magazines, records, films and everything else stored and dispensed by a modern library.

It was in 1876 that Melvil Dewey, then an undergraduate at Amherst College in Massachusetts, devised and anonymously published the first edition of what came to be known as the DDC, a 44-page pamphlet that brought order and standardization to the arbitrary and somewhat chaotic classification methods used at the time.

In 1889, Dewey's pioneering effort was revised and updated by William Howard Brett, head of the Cleveland Public Library and famed for introducing the open-shelf system, and the DDC soon became the national model.

If all Gaul is divided into three parts, according to Caesar, all knowledge is divided into 10 main classes, according to Dewey, with each class having 10 divisions and each division 10 sections, followed by a decimal point and one or more other digits to indicate other aspects of the basic subject.

In the 100 years since its creation, the DDC has been a major factor in the development of libraries, not only in the United States but throughout the world. Its flexible notation has helped libraries provide the open and easy access to materials that has been called the most valuable American contribution to librarianship.

Today, Melvil Dewey's modest pamphlet has been expanded through 18 editions into a multivolume work that has been translated into the major languages and is currently used in 134 countries.

Col. Sanders, Israeli chicken

WASHINGTON — Kentucky Fried Chicken, which peddles Colonel Sanders' delectables around the world, would like to have its chicken and eat it, too.

The corporate bosses, according to their confidential papers, would like to open a franchise in Israel. But if they should raise the colonel's goateed visage in Jerusalem and Tel Aviv, they might be boycotted by the Arab nations and thus lose a lot of bucks.

So they have been considering a scheme that would permit them to sell finger-lickin'-good chicken to the Israelis without offending the Arabs. The plan, as outlined in confidential corporate memos, calls for setting up an Israeli franchise, pretending it is illegal and laundering the proceeds, possibly through South Africa.

Kentucky Fried Chicken is now owned by the Heublein Corp., a billion-dollar firm that otherwise dispenses beer, wine and liquors. One of its executives, G. A. McNamara, is convinced that Colonel Sanders' Kentucky fries would be gobbled up in Israel.

"We must be in Israel," he declared in a July 28, 1976, memo. But this could leave the Heublein Corp. with a lot of uneaten chicken on its hands from Cairo to Kuwait. He concluded, therefore, that "we cannot be there legally."

But there is more than one way to pluck a chicken. He had located a man who was "interested in becoming a pirate franchisee," confided McNamara, "with some sort of remuneration to us via South Africa or elsewhere. He understands that we could not condone nor service his operation and, in fact, for cosmetic reasons might . . . have to bring litigation against him in Israel for usurping our mark."

But while the company engaged in this legal charade, it would quietly collect its regular royalties under the table. The proposal has not been implemented, a Heublein spokesman told us.

The hope of selling fried chicken to both the Arabs and Israelis has occupied the Heublein hierarchy for some time. McNamara assessed the Middle East market in a July 16, 1973, memo stamped "personal and confidential." Deals were cooking, he reported, in Iran, Kuwait and Lebanon, perhaps also Egypt and the Arabian Gulf countries.

"In Jordan," he added, "we have just signed with a cousin of King Hussein, Prince Ali, for a one-store option, and . . . the market looks like it could easily hold 10 to 15 units."

McNamara noted that Kentucky Fried Chicken had received a number of requests for franchises in Israel.

It could mean trouble with "U.S. and U.K. (United Kingdom) Jewish organizations," he warned, if Colonel Sanders invaded Israel and then retreated at the first Arab outcry. The company might even face "a very serious boycott on our beverage and food activities in major markets throughout the world," he cautioned.

Therefore, he concluded: "I feel that we should continue with our Arab world development and for cosmetic reasons continue periodically to discuss with interested parties in Israel so as to keep the file active. However, I seriously doubt whether we should ever, at least as Heublein, take a franchise position in Israel."

The Israelis, meanwhile, are still waiting for their first taste of Colonel Sanders' finger-lickin'-good product.

Footnote: A Heublein spokesman said the firm will soon undertake another "feasibility study".

Think on these things

Loving someone is a wonderful feeling. It is the gift of new life — the breath of fresh air from every season — the welcoming back of youth and joy. But loving is a responsibility, and handling that responsibility requires the wisdom of the sages. It means allowing the other person the freedom to be an individual — respecting his thought, his beliefs, his innermost feelings.

We only keep that which we let go free. Restraint, jealousy, dolefulness and desperate clinging saps love and makes it a duty — and love is not love unless it comes of its own volition. True love is based on friendship and friends cannot be friends long where there is disapproval and indignity. Friends are friends in spite of disagreement. Love is love when it frees its subject.

Slow shaping of post-Mao China

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — When I spent eight months in Mao Tse-tung's capital in the Yenan caves a third of a century ago, some 20 men ruled the Communist government and the Communist military forces.

In the 32 years since, some of that handful have died. A few have been purged. Some members of the outer governing ring have been added to the old Yenan group.

Nevertheless, despite purges and deaths, the Cultural Revolution, countless intrigues and the rise of a handful of new, influential figures, Communist China has, until the death of Mao himself, been dominated in the main by the remnants of the cadres of Yenan and the Long March and their associates.

When men and women of such force and power dominate for so long, they tend to gather around them a coterie of sycophants, men with bureaucratic minds unable to plan and carry out great projects.

The new rulers will come then, after a period of inner political turmoil, from the third, fourth and fifth echelons down where there are younger men — young only by comparison with the advanced ages of their seniors.

The problem is that we do not know these "younger" men, held down by the weight of the hierarchy above them. China, for all the Nixon opening, has been a closed book. A few names have hit the headlines, and we have rumors as to their outlook and their power. But visiting Americans, when permitted to meet and talk with politicians, have been largely limited to Mao, to Chou En-lai, to their close associates — and to a variety of minor figures able to quote Chairman Mao and little more. Even the ambassador to the United Nations today is a man I knew in the old Yenan group; so that here again we hear the old voices, not the new.

Now with Mao, Chou, LinPiao, Peng Te-Huai, Chen Yi, Chu Teh gone, a major segment of the old group is either dead or so aged and out of things their influence must be counted as little. Even that fine old soldier, Defense Minister Yeh, though in the inner circle, is understood to be losing influence because of age. And Mao's wife, as I understand it, has been influential primarily because she was backed by Mao — when it suited his purposes — and because she was useful to a particular faction of the party.

None of this is meant to suggest that Mao's successor will fail at putting it all together, a task at which Chinese are singularly adept. But it rather is to point out again that we have at this juncture no way of knowing what post-Mao China will be like in the long run.

Mao's personal worry was that with his passing China would become a huge bureaucracy on the Russian mold, with a smug privileged class which had lost its revolutionary zeal.

And in truth, the seeds of such a development are there.

It was for this reason, in major part, that Mao forced the ouster of a series of top party men — Liu, Teng and company.

Mao feared too that after his death his successors would grow overly dependent on foreign countries, either in the West or in the Communist block turned on by the power to be gained by monetary assistance and the modern factories, farm equipment and consumer goods could bring China — as contrasted with the time-consuming uncertainties inevitable in the long slow pull of self dependence and "make-do" which Mao held supreme.

The men who would opt for such a shift — to hurry up China's development — have been gaining in strength.

Whatever happens, it will be interesting to watch.

Deaf woman may lose right to dog

I moved into an apartment complex four years ago and paid $60 to have my small dog accepted there.

Since then another manager has taken over. This one says my dog is to be out by Oct. 1.

I am totally deaf and this little dog has been my ears since he was three months old.

He is my best friend. I can't abandon him.

I'm trying to find an apartment with a stove, refrigerator, drapes and an enclosed yard.

Can you help me? — L. B., Pomona.

We're not staffed to go apartment hunting but I did ask the apartment manager whether there was any possibility that you and your dog could remain where you are.

She said she had stretched a rule by allowing you to keep the dog in your apartment for the past year.

Your dog is lovable, she said, but is not trained to help a deaf person by pulling at his or her clothing when someone is at the door.

Instead it barks a lot, disturbing senior citizens who are your neighbors.

She is going to talk to the owner of the complex but doesn't hold much hope that you will be allowed to keep your dog there.

Perhaps readers will have a suggestion.

On Aug. 13 I called a chain store to find out whether a fishing reel sale with an extra spool included was still on.

I was told only five were left and they were going fast so I should come in soon. I did go in the same day.

The clerk handed me the reel. When I asked for the extra spool, he said there were no more. He gave me a rain check.

I have made four phone calls to see whether the spools had come in. The answer each time was no.

My wife went in Sept. 2 and was told to have the rain check re-dated as the first one wouldn't be effective much longer.

Can you get me the extra spool? — L. N., Chino.

After we contacted the store, one of its representatives said he now has the spool for you and you may pick it up.

He said the difficulty was a mistake in an advertisement. The store management obtained reels from another store to try to comply with the ad.

I am searching for a lens for a Kowa telescope. I have been unsuccessful thus far.

My son is interested in telescopes and I picked one up in a Goodwill store for him but it doesn't have a lens. — Mrs. L. T., Pomona.

We had the same luck trying to solve your problem as many of our readers have with theirs.

We contacted Bushnell Optical Co. in Pasadena, who referred us to Berkey Marketing Companies, New York, who sent our letter to Kowa America Corp., also in New York. Kowa referred us back to Bushnell.

We suspect your son's telescope is outdated, making it difficult or impossible to obtain the needed lens.

Kowa did send us a brochure. We are sending it to you in the hope that it may interest your son.

For Saturday, Sept. 25, 1976

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Something opportune may come about today through the good offices of a close associate. It will not only occur unusually, it will be unique.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) By all means follow through on your ideas today, even though it requires involvement of others. Don't be reticent about taking in a partner.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The impression you make on those meeting you for the first time will be a favorable one. Put your best foot forward.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Frequent places this evening where you're apt to see new faces. It's possible you'll meet someone you'll like very much.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't be afraid to make changes today if you feel they're for the better. It's time you got certain family matters off dead center.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Usually it's not wise to let impulses influence our actions. Today, however, you can let your hair down. Live it up a bit.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be on your toes today where dollars and cents are concerned. An unexpected shift in events could be turned into something profitable.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Put yourself out today for friends who request a favor. The slight risk will be more than repaid should you ever need their help.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If someone offers to do something for you today, stand clear. Let him do it his own way. His methods may be superior to yours.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Put the well-being of those you love above your own self-interests today. The personal satisfaction you get will be the very best reward.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An elusive goal you've been denied may suddenly fall into your lap today. Sit tight. Let nature run its course.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Pay particular heed today when someone close offers her advice. Think over all she has said carefully. It will help solve a particular problem.

Gets turned on by fat gals

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm a 24-year-old guy who has had a crazy sex problem for the last couple of years. I get turned on by heavy-set girls. I mean the fatter they are the better I like them.

I'm on the lean side and consider myself normal in every way except this one. I know there must be something wrong with me because I feel disgusted with myself the next morning and never want to see those fat girls again. Have you ever heard of this before? — H. J. Kid

Dear H. J.: Yes, I have, and I can tell you there is no explanation for what turns people on.

A good therapist can help you get to the root of your problem and solve it. And it IS a problem if you hate yourself in the morning.

Dear Ann Landers: After 10 years of marriage my husband and I agreed we were grossly mismated. We parted on good terms, each wishing the other well. After talking to myself for three days I decided to give my husband custody of our 5-year-old son. The boy adores his dad and I felt he needed a male's influence in his formative years.

The divorce and custody arrangements are working out beautifully. My ex-husband and I get along much better than we did when we were married. The boy is very happy. He loves us both and I see him often.

The problem is not with us, it's the rest of the world. If one more friend or relative asks me, "How could you give your son up?" I think I'll scream.

Another question, "What are you going to do NOW?" It so happens that I am O.K. financially and don't have to "do" anything.

I consider such questions an invasion of my privacy. Please help me think of a snappy comeback that will jar their bicuspids. — Tongue-Tied

Dear T.T.: Why do you feel the need to respond to clods who ask nun-uv-yer-biznizz-type questions? A blank stare, feigned deafness of icy silence are what the boors deserve. Try one — or all three — and put THEM on the defensive where they belong.

Dear Ann Landers: I think you write a pretty fair column but sometimes you contradict yourself. For example:

Not long ago you said it was perfectly normal for a girl to have fantasies about lovers. (She daydreamed a lot about Dustin Hoffman.) The same week you condemned a man because he enjoyed dressing up like a woman, putting on a wig, lipstick, jewelry and so on. You called him "sick."

Why do you consider a man "sick" because he enjoys fantasies, but a woman who lets her imagination wander you consider "normal"? Answer in print — if you can. — Angel Camp, Calif.

Dear Angel: Correction, please. I comment, evaluate, respond to questions and offer opinions, but I don't "condemn."

Fantasies remain in the head, and as Robert Louis Stevenson said, "We all have thoughts that would shame hell." But a male who dresses like a female is doing more than fantasizing, he is acting out his desires. And this particular fantasy is clearly aberrant — a deviation from the normal. Get it?

Love's labor lost in mediation

If you and your wife are having marital problems, as who is not, before you march off to a divorce lawyer, why not try arbitration?

(Leave me say right at the start that I have been happily married for 34 years, and this column in no way relates to the long, peaceful voyage of our Bark of Matrimony through the stormy Seas of Life, okay, dear?)

An organization called the American Arbitration Association (AAA, not to be confused with the Auto Club or Alcoholics Annonymous) has formed the Family Disputes Services to sit husband and wife of a troubled family down with a professional arbitrator or mediator to try to work out the problems before she packs her bags and goes home to mother or he heads for the local pub.

(AAA's regional director is Charles H. Bridge — an unfortunate name, in view of the fact that the game of bridge has led more than one otherwise wee-adjusted couple to the divorce court. However.)

AAA has had an excellent record in handling labor-management disputes, and feels the same techniques — statement of grievances, discussion of problems, analysis by a disinterested arbitrator — will work with American couples. Whether the AAA can solve that most basic obstacle to happy marriages — lack of money — was not made clear.

The AAA, I feel, is naive and unduly sanguine to suppose that because it can solve the problems of 5,000 hard hats and a penny-pinching management, it is also capable of reconciling an angry wife who holds a 9-to-5 job and raises a family, and an irritable husband who watches the Rams and drinks too much. Labor unions are one thing; recalcitrant married couples are a thousand.

SCENE: Arbitration room of the AAA. Mediator at desk, facing angry wife and sullen husband, who nurses a black eye.

Mediator: Now then, I'm sure that whatever little differences you two have been having can be ironed out smoothly by talking them over with—

Wife: He came home stinking last night. Again.

Husband: Who wouldn't? Howling kids, cold TV dinner, wife on the phone to her lawyer. She threw a flower pot at me.

Mediator: Now, now. Do I understand that your husband drinks too much?

Wife: Are you kidding? Why do you think International Distillers declared a stocksplit last week?

Husband: A guy's got to fortify himself to face a dame in hair-curlers, a dirty house, a bunch of mangy kids.

Wife: That's it! I'm going on strike!

Husband: Strike! Ha ha, that's good! Strike from what? You haven't lifted a finger around the house for—

Wife: No more goodies in beddy-bye until you knock off the—

Mediator (anguished): Wait! Wait a minute! Can't we talk over—

Husband: I'll have a lockout. I'll keep you out of the—

Wife: I'll picket the house. I'll get a placard that says—

Mediator: Wait, I'm sure if we try collective bargaining, you'll find that—

Husband: No way! If she can't cook a decent meal, I'm going to boycott. I'll have her blacklisted in every—

Wife: Okay, smart guy. From now on my bed is a closed shop, see? You don't like profit-sharing, I'll take it to the National Labor Relations Board.

Mediator: Wait, please! You are both being very stupid. I can—

Husband: Who you calling stupid, stupid? (Grabs vase and smashes it on mediator's head, knocking him cold.)

Wife (admiringly): Nice shot, darling. Haven't lost your touch, have you? Come on home; I'll grill you a steak.

Husband: Sure, baby. Let's you and me go home and start cookin'.

Drug replaces hormones

DEAR DR. LAMB — A few years ago I had a hysterectomy and have been taking a pill called Premarin ever since. I was told I would have to take them for as long as I live. I'm now 35 years old. I would like to know why I should keep taking this pill and if I stop taking it what effect it would have on me?

Recently a doctor's nurse told me she had the same operation and has not taken any medicine since. It appears some doctors believe it should be taken and others believe the opposite. One doctor told me it would keep me younger looking. Is this so? I know many women would like an answer about this pill. No one seems to know much about it yet millions are taking it.

DEAR READER — Premarin is a mixture of various fractions of the female hormone, estrogen. It is normally used to replace estrogens if a woman is low in female hormones.

During a hysterectomy a doctor may remove the ovaries, depending upon the case. If he does so in a young woman she will have an early menopause. Estrogens are given to replace her normal hormone production. Even if the ovaries are not removed, the blood supply to them may be damaged during surgery and they may not continue to function as well as before.

Now there are variations in the need for the hormones. If a woman's adrenal cortex — the little gland over both kidneys — produces enough female hormones a woman may not have too much difficulty. Some women don't have this source of hormones to fall back on and don't produce enough.

The same situation applies to a woman when she goes through the menopause, or better stated, when her ovaries normally degenerate and stop functioning. If she produces enough hormones from other sources she may not have many changes but if she is not so fortunate then she will undergo changes associated with the menopause.

The estrogen hormones will help a woman who needs them for replacement in a number of respects. They help prevent changes in the cells of the vagina. They help prevent cellular changes in part of the bladder that often lead to recurrent bladder infections. The hormones prevent hot flashes. The rest of the benefits of female hormones is a subject for debate. Some claim hey help prevent heart disease and perhaps degeneration of the bones.

The dangers are associated with an increased risk of cancer of the lining of the uterus that I have spoken of before. If you have had a hysterectomy as you have that is not a consideration.

Estrogen hormones are not advisable in patients who have epilepsy, migraines, asthma, cardiac or kidney diseases or other disease associated with an accumulation of fluid. The hormones cause the body to retain sodium just as the natural ones do.

In young women such as you, if there is no major reason against taking the medicine it is usually better to take it after a hysterectomy if the ovaries are removed or damaged.

Those interested in more information about female hormones can send 50 cents for The Health Letter number 5-12, Menopause. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to Dr. Lamb in care of this newspaper, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

King can upset applecart

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The unlucky expert had caught us again. With no escape, we agreed to listen to the sad story of one hand.

Here is his tale of woe. "This hand cost me top score last night. The field was in the same four-spade contract I was with one exception. Everyone else made it. I was down one."

"You didn't call for dummy's king of diamonds at trick one, did you?" we asked.

"No, I called for the deuce, but old Jonesy, who sat East, played his ace anyway. If I had called for the king I would have been OK anyway. Jones had a card out to lead back and suddenly asked what the king was doing in dummy. Then he put that card back and placed the queen of hearts on the table. Three quick heart tricks cooked my goose."

The hand is rather interesting in that some good player in the East seat might deliberately play the ace of diamonds at trick one. The theory being that South would have played dummy's king, if he held two diamonds. A trifle far-fetched, but experts do all sorts of unusual things and sometimes they work.

Wide receiver ranked niftiest

The niftiness of football players on the field is referred to by medical experts as "motor skill." And studies show that player with the highest degree of same tends to be the wide receiver. Then comes the tailback. After that the halfback. Rated in descending order thereafter are the quarterback, cornerback, linebacker, tight end, guard, defensive end, center, defensive tackle, interior lineman and offensive tackle.

Recent research indicates those cities wherein the houses are priced the lowest include Austin, Houston, Denver and Bakersfield. Those with the highest priced houses included Anchorage, Honolulu, New York City and Boston.

Q. "How many years is 'a generation'?

A. Figure 33.

It has long been claimed that youngsters in hot humid climates tend to mature earlier than children elsewhere. But latest studies show, on the contrary, that the warmer and wetter the weather year round, the later arrives the puberty among most.

Consider yourself a Seasoned Citizen, too, if you recall when John Wayne preceded Gene Autry as Hollywood's first vocalizing cowboy. Name of the film character was "Singing Sam."

Do you realize more than 10,000 people worldwide have survived kidney transplants?

GREENWICH VILLAGE

Few records remain about how one young woman named Babs single-handedly almost wiped out prostitution in New York City's Greenwich Village in the 1920s. She vowed to drive the plain streetwalkers out of the area, by whatever means. The means were extreme. Photos show her to have been quite attractive. She offered herself free to any man who promised not to pay the working girls.

Contrary to widespread belief, a "lion's share" is not most of something, but almost all of it, reports our Language man. After a lion makes a kill, said beast does not abandon much of it, but between naps, eats the whole thing, except for bones and whatnot.

Lovers reunited after many years apart

OAKLAND (AP) — Neoma was his first love, but war and distance intervened. He married another, and so did she.

But an intricate sequence of events has rekindled the romance between Maurice Kingston and Neoma Ricks Myers 35 years after their wartime parting.

They met at Sweet's Ballroom in downtown Oakland early in 1941, just after the British ship that Kingston was serving on during World War II was pulled into Mare Island for repairs on the torpedo-damaged vessel.

"We went to the cinema, or she'd cook me a meal," Kingston recalled.

But three months later, Kingston's ship left for England.

"She was on the jetty as we sailed away, and an American band was playing 'Anchors Aweigh.' We were lined up on the upper deck and watched them disappear into the distance," Kingston said.

They corresponded a few times, but two years later, he married another woman in England. His wife died early this year.

The story of the reunion actually began in 1974 when, feeling sentimental one night, Kingston sat down in his home in England and wrote The Oakland Tribune about his wartime romance.

The Tribune published his letter, without a return address, and some friends of Mrs. Myers sent her a copy where she was living in San Diego. She had been married and had three children but was now divorced.

She came across an old address of Kingston's mother and sent him a letter via the mother's address. A correspondence began, but it stopped when Kingston's wife became terminally ill.

"It was quite a while before he wrote and told me what had happened," said Mrs. Myers during a recent visit of the couple to this area. "Then we began writing and sending tapes to each other."

Kingston said he just "sat down one day and was just taping — I was feeling miserable — and I more or less popped the question. I said, 'Would you like to marry me?' Perhaps we could get together and see if we have something going."

"She was my first girlfriend, the first woman in my life," Kingston said. "It seemed we might get together again."

Mrs. Myers went to England, and the families met.

"We're getting married on the 29th of January," said Kingston. The couple will live in England.

Together again

Former British seaman Maurice Kingston plans to wed his wartime sweetheart, Neoma Ricks Myers of Oakland after a 35-year separation. The pair met in Oakland in 1941 when Kingston's ship, the HMS Liverpool, docked at Mare Island to repair torpedo damage.

Good mixture

Mondale focuses on taxes, Republicans

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Sen. Walter F. Mondale is finding the combination of taxes and Republicans a good campaign mixture, and he is taking every opportunity to focus on it.

Mondale, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, is well versed in tax legislation as a member of the Senate Finance Committee, which handles tax bills in the Senate.

And he "knows what elimination of a loophole will do to each group of taxpayers," one of his aides said.

Mondale's appearances Wednesday in Chicago, Springfield, Ill., and Madison, Wis., were, like other events during the week, turned into attacks on President Ford and his running mate, Sen. Bob Dole, and their tax legislation records.

The subject has been brought up so frequently by Mondale that the aide said, "Ask him the time of day and he'll tell you about taxes."

Mondale said the GOP candidates "have a lousy record on tax reform."

Dole has criticized both Democratic presidential nominee Jimmy Carter and Mondale on the subject of taxes, and Mondale said, "They raised the issue. We're not going to drop it."

Criticism of Carter has focused on a statement last week in which he said he would try to shift the tax burden from lower-and middle-income taxpayers to those in higher tax brackets. He said at first he would use median income as a break-point. But when told the nation's median income is about $12,000, he said he did not know where he would eventually place the break-point.

"Anyone who has ever watched the Republicans on tax reform knows perfectly well that the Democratic candidate for president and his running mate want tax reform that would eliminate some of the outrageous tax loopholes and with the money we pick up, reduce taxes on low-and middle income Americans," Mondale said.

"Republicans stink on tax reform," he said at Midway Airport in Chicago. "We want to get serious on that issue, change those taxes and bring relief to middle-income Americans."

Ford and Dole "have spent their public careers looking for more loopholes for the rich and higher taxes for lower-and middle-income Americans," Mondale said in Springfield.

Later, he told a reception at a converted train station serving as Carter-Mondale headquarters in Madison that the Republican candidates "should get the loophole of the year award."

He said that the administration's 1975 plan for providing tax relief by increasing standard deductions would have benefited the wealthy more than the poor.

A Mondale staff member said that when compared with the congressional plan eventually adopted, the administration's plan would have saved a family earning $10,000 a year $154 less. The aide said that the administration plan would have saved a family earning $15,000 a year $85 less than under the congressional plan.

But she said that under the administration's plan, families earning from $50,000 to $100,000 would have saved $780 more than under the plan approved by Congress.

She said the numbers were calculated by Mondale's staff members working with Senate Finance Committee figures for 1975.

Mondale used some of the figures in his Madison talk, but in none of his other appearances Wednesday was he specific on what changes he would make in the tax laws. Earlier in the week he indicated specific targets would be the oil depletion allowance, which permits oil companies to use their investments in oil discovery to reduce their taxes; tax credits for overseas investments; and tax shelters based on domestic investments.

In speeches in Maine and in small towns in Ohio and Indiana on the Democrat's whistlestop campaign train Tuesday, he challenged audiences to find a tax lawyer who could find tax loopholes for them.

"He can't find you a tax loophole if you're a working American because they only apply to those in top income brackets using investments to shield their income," he said. He defined top income brackets as income over $50,000.

"What Gov. Carter is talking about is removing tax shelters," he said. "Present tax shelters benefit Americans earning $50,000 or more."

Polar pair reunited

WORCESTER, Mass. (AP) — Eight months after he was removed to another zoo because his mate at the Worcester Science Center was pregnant, Ursa Major came home.

Major, a giant polar bear was reunited with his mate, Ursa Minor, to the cheers of some 200 youngsters who were on hand to witness the homecoming.

It was feared that the long-separated bears would fight when reunited, but they nuzzled each other and "feigned fighting," said Dean Clark, a spokesman for the center. "It was obvious they recognized each other. It was really an emotional experience."

The cubs would have been aborted by the mother had the male remained, center officials explained. Of two cubs born, one was killed by its mother and the other died of an unknown ailment.

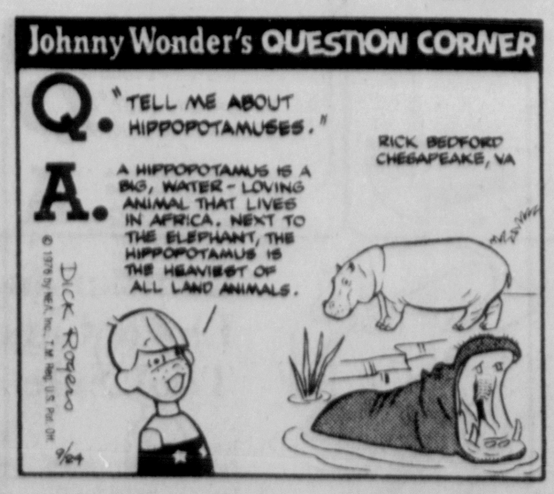
JOHNNY WONDER



A hippopotamus is a big, water-loving animal with a big head and an enormous mouth that can open as wide as 3 to 4 feet.

"Hippopotamus" comes from Greek words meaning "river horse." Part of the name is a good one, for a hippopotamus spends much time in the water of rivers, with only its eyes and nose sticking out.

But a hippopotamus isn't like a horse. It is a much closer relative of the pig.

A big one may weigh over 4 tons. It is heavier than every land animal except the elephant.

Hippopotamuses are found wild only in Africa, but almost every zoo has one.

During the day the hippopotamus remains in the water. It is a good swimmer and can even walk along the river bottom. It can stay underwater for as long as 10 minutes at a time.

At night it walks about and eats grass on land. Not all hippopotamuses are huge. The pygmy hippo looks like the common hippopotamus but is only about as big as a large hog.

A World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

Wish me luck, Marcie . . . I'm off to private school!

I'm going to the "Ace obedience school"! It's kind of a strange name, but it probably means that they stress discipline . . .

That's okay with me . . . I'm the first one to admit that my study habits aren't too good.

I wonder though, why we're supposed to take along a choke-chain.

Johnny Wonder's QUESTION CORNER

Q. "TELL ME ABOUT HIPPOPOTAMUSES."

RICK BEDFORD
CHESAPEAKE, VA

A. A HIPPOPOTAMUS IS A BIG, WATER-LOVING ANIMAL THAT LIVES IN AFRICA. NEXT TO THE ELEPHANT, THE HIPPOPOTAMUS IS THE HEAVIEST OF ALL LAND ANIMALS.

DICK ROGERS

A hippopotamus is a big, water-loving animal with a big head and an enormous mouth that can open as wide as 3 to 4 feet.

"Hippopotamus" comes from Greek words meaning "river horse." Part of the name is a good one, for a hippopotamus spends much time in the water of rivers, with only its eyes and nose sticking out.

But a hippopotamus isn't like a horse. It is a much closer relative of the pig.

A big one may weigh over 4 tons. It is heavier than every land animal except the elephant.

Hippopotamuses are found wild only in Africa, but almost every zoo has one.

During the day the hippopotamus remains in the water. It is a good swimmer and can even walk along the river bottom. It can stay underwater for as long as 10 minutes at a time.

At night it walks about and eats grass on land. Not all hippopotamuses are huge. The pygmy hippo looks like the common hippopotamus but is only about as big as a large hog.

A World Almanac globe or other fine prize will be awarded to the first youngster sending in a question used here. Send your question and your age to Johnny Wonder, (c/o this newspaper), Box 1335 (DA), Santa Cruz, CA 95061.

PEANUTS

Wish me luck, Marcie . . . I'm off to private school!

I'm going to the "Ace obedience school"! It's kind of a strange name, but it probably means that they stress discipline . . .

That's okay with me . . . I'm the first one to admit that my study habits aren't too good.

I wonder though, why we're supposed to take along a choke-chain.

Minnie Hedrick now a public utility

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Minnie Hedrick is now officially a public utility.

The Public Service Commission announced Wednesday that it has granted Mrs. Hedrick a certificate to operate a water system. But she has only 12 customers and expects to get rid of them.

The system serves the subdivision that Mrs. Hedrick and her husband developed in 1968, installing a water storage and distribution system to serve people who built homes there.

After her husband's death, Mrs. Hedrick continued to operate the system, buying water from the City of Petersburg to resell to residents. This led to a complaint with the PSC that she was operating without a certificate or approval of her rates.

Mrs. Hedrick told the PSC she will go out of the water business when a new public service district created by Grant County is ready to take over her customers.

Lettuce Settle This

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The lawyers got $5,000 cash, but the plaintiffs must eat and drink their settlement at a Hambuger Hamlet restaurant.

"It just seemed the appropriate thing to do ... sometimes you settle a lawsuit any way you can," attorney George DeRoy said Wednesday.

DeRoy's firm filed a class-action suit last year, claiming that the six-restaurant chain had bought the stock of 6 shareholders at deflated prices and failed to inform them that it wanted to drop out of public trading.

A spokesman for the restaurant denied it was going private and said the stock was bought at a fair price of $4.50 a share.

A settlement on file Tuesday with U.S. District Court Judge Jesse W. Curtis gave the plaintiffs 35-cent coupons for each share of Hamburger Hamlet stock they sold back to the company. The coupons will be good at any of the chain's restaurants.

Hard to Find Easy Street

EASY STREET, N.C. (AP) — There's no highway sign marking it, and it's not on the official state map. But Easy Street does exist.

At the intersection of North Carolina 96 and 55 in northern Sampson County, sits Godwin's store — the unofficial town hall. A soft drink sign proclaims the name of the community.

"About 40 years ago," says Alphonzo Godwin, the community's unofficial mayor, "I had another store right over yonder and Uncle Frank Maynard walked in one day and there was about a dozen boys lying around taking it easy. 'Well,' Uncle Frank said, 'This must be Easy Street,' and the name just stuck after that."

But Godwin said the approximately 200 Easy Street residents have to work for a living just like everybody else.

"My wife runs this store, and I farm, and between the both of us working, we get by," said Godwin. "Most folks around here farm for a living."

But Godwin would like an official sign. "Timothy (a neighboring community) has got one and there ain't a dozen people over there. ... I don't know why the county won't put us up a sign here so we can get on the map."

Funding set for LA jobs

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The city council has authorized using $21 million in federal and city funds to pay for 4,000 public-service jobs through next March.

More than $15 million in unspent funds from the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act will be will be shifted to the jobs program, and the city will pay in an additional $5.5 million.

Alston center of Dodgers interest

The Dodgers face Cincinnati tonight in the first game of nine in the final home stand of the year.

What suspense there is revolves around Walter Alston. Peter O'Malley has already said Alston can return as manager next year if he so desires.

Walter himself has not given any indication he doesn't want to. But there are some disturbing things about the situation. An undercurrent of dissatisfaction that was lacking in other years.

The Los Angeles Times reported last Sunday that it found little clubhouse support for Alston. Two unnamed players were quoted, one who supports Alston and one who doesn't.

But there were things said by both players that make you wonder if Alston should be invited to manage the team again.

The player who is against rehiring Walter was said to be an aggressive and consistent performer who does not need motivation.

Yet this player said flatly that, "Walt does not deserve to be rehired. He has made too many mistakes in strategy and he has become too stereotyped.

"We're not aggressive. We don't intimidate anyone," the player continued. "We make fundamental mistakes and they go uncorrected. We pay the price for using players in positions other than they're used to.

"We don't involve all 25 players. Some guys on the bench never get a start that would help them maintain their interest, help keep them sharp, help the regulars stay strong."

More bad news

The player noted as an Alston supporter said the players themselves should be blamed. But his statement was still damaging to the manager.

"We have the ability to get the job done and we haven't done it," he said. "There is a tendency towards selfishness on this team, a tendency toward thinking of the individual rather than the team."

Now if the faults mentioned above are not faults that should be corrected by the manager, then the players should be dealt away by the manager.

No one in his right mind would say the Dodgers should have beaten the Reds out of the pennant this year. But the feeling here is they certainly could have made more of a race than they did.

Former PB writer Gordon Verrell had a similar story in the Long Beach Press Telegram recently. Verrell covers the Dodgers and travels with the team.

Quoting an anonymous regular, Gordy's story went like this:

"He doesn't deserve to be rehired," the player said. "He's made far too many mistakes this season. If you don't think so, look at this.

"He was pointing to the Dodger lineup, posted on the dugout wall. In particular, he was pointing to Ted Sizemore listed to start at third base. 'Ted's not a third baseman,' he said with a scowl."

"As it developed he was right," Verrell's story continues. It was Sizemore's two base error plus a mental lapse on the subsequent play that enabled Cincinnati to score three runs and the Reds ended up with a 4-2 victory over the Dodgers.

Abilities erroded?

There is no question about Alston's long service and devotion to the Dodgers. The question is, should the man be allowed to continue to manage IF (and that's the catch) IF his abilities have been eroded by the passing years.

The Dodgers have not played team baseball the last two years. There are too many players that worry about their statistics and their publicity more than they do about the team and whether it wins or loses.

Some of them are mainstays in the Dodger attack.

Can Alston do anything about it. Is he willing to try and do anything about it?

These are the things the O'Malleys should give considerable thought to. The decision will surely be difficult.

HERE 'N THERE — Tonight's game is the only night game of the three with the Reds. Saturday's and Sunday's games are 1 p.m. contests.

Add to Thursday's column on Harry Dalton. The Angels have been weak behind the plate since the days of Bob Rogers. In his five years with the team, Dalton has handpicked two receivers each of whom he thought would fill the bill.

The first was Ellie Rodriguez. The second was Andy Etchebarren. Neither could throw nor hit with any consistency.

Rodriguez finally was traded to the Dodgers for Orlando Alvarez who also was found wanting and shipped back to Salt Lake City. Etchebarren is still hanging on.

Bruins favored to win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Official Pac—8 conference standings won't change one iota this week, but Saturday's games should give further indication to the strength of the clubs with UCLA's defending champs expected to notch victory No. 3.

Officially, Southern California is on top with a 1-0 Pac—8 record and their Oregon victims are on the bottom at 0-1. The others have been playing nonconference foes and it's a full slate of those on Saturday.

UCLA attempts to outshoot the Air Force at Los Angeles and with such runners as Wendell Tyler, newcomer Theotis Brown and quarterback Jeff Dankworth, who also can pass, the Bruins are favored by four touchdowns.

The rest of the slate reads California at Arizona State, Oregon at Utah, Southern California at Purdue, San Jose State at Stanford, Indiana at Washington and Washington State at Wisconsin.

In the Pacific Coast Athletic Association, Northern Illinois plays at Long Beach State, Montana State at Fresno State and Hawaii at the University of the Pacific.

San Jose could make things very rough indeed for the Stanfords since the Spartans are undefeated in three games and their neighbors to the north non winning in two.

However, the Stanford losses have been to Penn State, 15-12, and Michigan 51-0 while San Jose has whipped non-ranked clubs Utah State, 45-10, Hawaii, 48-7, and Fullerton State, 20-0.

Stanford alternates quarterbacks Guy Benjamin and Mike Cordova and the aerial fireworks will be the hottest that San Jose has faced this year.

The Spartans will have a chance to enhance the reputation of the still-young PCAA since the Stanford encounter will be the regionally televised game on the West Coast.

San Jose will show off the running of Rick Kane, the team leader with 283 yards in three games, and the passing of Steve DeBerg who has hit 33 of 49, an almost incredible .673 per cent, for 572 yards and six touchdowns.

So Stanford must also defend against an outstanding passer.

Overall, the Pacific—8 has failed to cover itself with anything approaching glory in the intersectional and non-conference games. They've won five, including the two by UCLA, and lost 12.

Rams will go with Harris vs. Giants

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — James Harris, the No. 1 quarterback of the Los Angeles Rams, returns to action on Sunday as the club opens its home National Football League season against the New York Giants.

Harris, after outstanding performances in the first four preseason games, suffered a broken thumb as the Rams beat Buffalo 31-17. As he threw a touchdown pass, Harris hit the helmet of a Buffalo player and suffered the injury.

First Ron Jaworski took over to beat San Francisco in the preseason and then started against Atlanta in the first regular season game.

Then Jaworski suffered a broken shoulder in scoring against the Falcons and rookie Pat Haden, from the University of Southern California, directed the club. He finished the Atlanta game and went all the way in the 10-10 overtime tie against Minnesota last week.

"Harris threw in practice Wednesday and appeared to be ready," said Coach Chuck Knox. "If Harris is 100 per cent, he's our quarterback."

However, before replacing Haden with the veteran, Knox had originally expected to watch Harris in practice both Wednesday and Thursday.

Apparently, one of the practice sessions was sufficient to determine that the regular of 1975 had his timing back and Knox made the announcement.

He also announced that Pat Thomas of the special teams and linebacker Rick Kay would be associate team captains for the Giants game. Defensive tackle Merlin Olsen has long been one of the regular co-captains and Dennis Harrah was named to a similar post for the offense this year on the retirement of guard Joe Scibelli.

Jimenez scores boxing triumph

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alfonso Jimenez, 135½ of Oaxapa, Mexico, scored a 10-round decision Thursday night over Juan Garcia, 136¾, the lightweight champion of Chile, in a main event at the Olympic Auditorium.

There were no knockdowns in the fight but Garcia made the fight close by staggering Jimenez in the 10th round with a right to the head.

It was the 17th victory for Jimenez against one loss and a draw. Garcia dropped to 16-3-2.

No points for Bonita, Azusa

By PAUL CLICK
PB Correspondent

Bonita and Azusa High put on a defensive show for the fans Thursday night at Citrus College.

Bonita and Azusa dueled to a 0-0 tie as both clubs displayed excellent defense and made numerous mistakes offensively. These offensive lapses kept the ball out of the end zone.

"We made too many mistakes tonight," noted Bonita's Pete Lopez. "We made too many fumbles and it seemed like we should have been playing this game last week.

"The offensive line didn't come through the way it was supposed to as we were hurt by Azusa's tremendous rushes. I thought we had receivers open most of the night but we couldn't keep our hands on the ball."

Defense was the name of the game as both sides could only role up a total of 115 total yards in first half action. Neither side came close to putting a touchdown on the board.

Bonita's Ray Banker gave the Bearcats their deepest penetration of the first half with a 15-yard burst to the Azusa 29-yard line as the clock ran out.

The Bearcats finished the first half with 55 yards to Azusa's 60. Quarterback Sanford Coggins was the 'Cats' top rusher with 23 yards. Bonita was a minus 14 from the air in first half action.

Azusa saw a long march halted at the Bonita 17-yard line and the Bearcats were equal to the task defensively in the second half as well. They held the Aztecs on a fourth-and-four situation from the Bonita 17-yard line with five minutes remaining in the third quarter.

Azusa never came close to scoring again. Two key Dan Thompson interceptions helped keep Azusa outside the 30-yard line. The two thefts give Thompson four on the year.

Lopez noted, "I was pleased with the performance of our defensive squad. When you've got a shot at winning what can you say. I was real pleased with the way they performed."

Bonita's offense picked up only 49 second-half yards while Azusa racked up 91. Banker, a junior, was Bonita's top ground gainer with 34 yards in six carries.

Coggins, who had an excellent performance last week against Claremont, was a marked man by the Aztec defense. He ended the night 2-for-8 from the air for just nine yards. He was able to elude the stubborn Aztec rush long enough to scramble for 27 yards.

Mistakes cost Bonita several chances though as it fumbled the ball to halt potential scoring opportunities. But the key play of the night had to be Coggins' costly fumble on the Azusa 24-yard line. It halted the Bearcats longest drive of the night and their only serious scoring threat.

Azusa's quarterback Ted Walther, realizing that the Aztec's couldn't run on the tough Bonita defense, went to the air. However, the Bonita pass defense was equal to the task as it batted down numerous passes that might have reached Azusa pass receiver's hands.

Walther completed 5-of-8 passed for a total of 38 yards. A big sack by Mike Sly of 10 yards in the first half limited Walther's final passing yardage.

Bonita's next opponent is Royal Oak next Friday as the Bearcats open Hacienda League play at Charter Oak High's stadium.

Oakland still has foot in the door in A.L. West

The Kansas City Royals had the opportunity to slam the door in Oakland's face, but the A's still have their feet inside.

"We're very confident," said Oakland's Sal Bando.

The New York Yankees had the chance to seal the door on Baltimore, but the Orioles still see a crack.

"It's possible they'll continue to lose more games," said Baltimore's Rick Dempsey. "The Philadelphia Phillies blew it in 1964 somehow."

The runnersup in the two American League divisional races remained on the critical list, but both still had a wisp of hope after "must" victories over the leaders Thursday night.

The A's refused to die with an 8-1 rout of Kansas City that moved them within five games of the West leaders. The Orioles shocked the Yankees 2-1 to sweep their four-game series and climb within 7½ games of the East front-runners.

"We might have instilled some doubt in them," said Bando after the A's second straight rout of the Royals.

Acknowleding a possible pennant race in the West, Oakland pitcher Mike Torrez said: "We know we have to win every game. Hopefully, Texas will give us a little help. And we're going to have to sweep in Chicago."

The Orioles face more of an impossible mission, since the Yankees' "magic number" for clinching their division is merely three. However, Dempsey, the Baltimore catcher, is hoping for a miracle.

"I don't really think there's any way they can blow it," said Dempsey. "But they really have to break their necks now. If we win all our games I think they'll really have to go hard to win three."

In other American League action, the Boston Red Sox routed the Milwaukee Brewers 10-3; the Minnesota Twins blanked the Chicago White Sox 3-0 and the Texas Rangers nipped the California Angels 6-5.

Torrez hurled a five-hitter to lead Oakland's victory. Torrez, 15-11, was in control all the way, allowing a lone run in the sixth on singles by Tom Poquette, Amos Otis and John Mayberry.

Taking the loss was Kansas City starter Dennis Leonard, 17-9, who gave up five runs in the first two innings. The A's pounded seven hits, but were aided by nine walks, three wild pitches and one hit batter.

Rookie Mike Flanagan outdueled veteran Catfish Hunter for his third major league victory as Baltimore again stalled New York's pennant drive. Flanagan allowed six singles and Ken Singeleton drove in both Baltimore runs with a seventh-inning triple and a ninth-inning single. The setback was the fifth in a row for the Yankees.

Little things mean a lot to Dodgers

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When you're out of a pennant race, little things mean a lot — like a series sweep, a stolen base title and 200 hits.

That's what the Dodgers were talking about Thursday night following a 4-1 victory over the San Francisco Giants behind the flying feet of Davey Lopes and the three-hit pitching of Burt Hooton.

San Francisco had the Governor's Trophy clinched before the three-game series began, but the Dodgers ended the 1976 rivalry on a sweep note by winning all three games to cut the Giants' final edge to 10-8.

Lopes swiped three bases in the finale, giving him 59 and a one theft lead over idle Joe Morgan of the Cincinnati Reds. That's quite an accomplishment considering Lopes has played in only 109 games.

"I'm quite satisfied," said Lopes. "I missed about six weeks with a pulled muscle in my rib cage and have started only 101 games, but I'm shooting for the stolen base title and I think I have a good shot.

"Morgan slows down this time of year, and with the Reds having the pennant clinched, I'm sure he'll be picking his spots. I've got 23 steals in my last 28 games, so I'm going to keep pushing."

Steve Garvey edged closer to his third consecutive 200-hit season with a double and a single off loser John Montefusco, 15-14. Garvey needs 11 hits in the nine remaining games to reach his goal.

"It would mean a lot to get 200 hits," said Garvey. "I agree with Pete Rose that it's one of the toughest things to do in baseball because it means you had a lot of consistency and contact."

The Giants made very little contact with the offerings of Hooton, 11-14, who surrendered a pair of singles to Gary Matthews and a home run to rookie Jack Clark.

Hooton retired 16 batters in a row before working out of a bases-loaded jam in the ninth. Montefusco was touched for a pair of runs in each of the first two innings.

SAL out to improve first week's showing

By MIKE BROSSART
PB Staff Writer

The San Antonio League will try to right itself and the Hacienda League will attempt to stay on the right track tonight.

Six schools from the SAL will be looking for their first wins on this second Friday of the 1976 prep football season. A seventh, Claremont High, will try for its initial victory Saturday.

Only Garey, 26-20 winner over Royal last week, has a shot at a 2-0 pre-league slate. The Vikings, who surprised the class 4A Highlanders last week at Simi Valley High, will step down to 2A competition tonight when they host the La Sierra Eagles at Mt. San Antonio College at 7:30 p.m.

Coach Lawson Bush will be counting on more of the same from quarterback Al Clay and running backs Ralph Dixon, Elijah Turner and Doug Brissette but will be hoping for a much improved effort from his inexperienced defense.

The Eagles opened their season last week with a 14-8 victory over L.A. Lutheran, the runnerup in last year's 1A playoffs.

Only one other SAL squad can finish the pre-league portion of the season with a winning mark and that is Chino.

The Cowboys had to settle for a 7-7 tie in Ridgecrest last week against Burroughs of the 2A Golden League and they will hit the road again tonight.

This time, however, Chino may be lucky to escape with a tie since its opponent is Santa Ana Valley, the eighth-ranked 3A team in the first CIF writers' poll.

Chino will square off against the Falcons at 8 p.m. in the Santa Ana Bowl.

If the Cowboys' debut against Burroughs was not all it could have been — with five fumbles lost by Chino ballcarriers and two interceptions thrown — at least one of Coach Jim Rawls' players turned in a superior effort. Linebacker Barry Higgins intercepted three passes and scored Chino's only touchdown on a 21-yard return of one of them.

Higgins appeared to have another TD on a 73-yard runback, but a clipping call nullified that score.

Valley won the 3A championship two years ago and made it to the quarterfinals in 1975. The Falcons opened with a 16-10 win over Los Alamitos last week.

Among the players Chino will have to deal with is Reggie West, a 5-foot, 175-pound senior who was named to Prep Sports Magazine's pre-season All-America team as a defensive back. The talented speedster also plays slotback when the Falcons have the ball.

Two of tonight's games will match SAL schools with Hacienda Leaguers: Ontario will visit Montclair at 7:30 p.m. and Alta Loma will host Upland at 8 p.m.

Last week's SAL-HL confrontations proved disastrous for the 3A schools, as Alta Loma beat Montclair, 49-3, San Dimas tamed Damien, 27-14, and Bonita walloped Claremont, 31-7.

With Ontario's 6-0 blanking of Mountain View and Royal Oak's 14-7 decision over Charter Oak, the HL logged 5-3 record for the first week of the season.

Walnut's 32-22 loss to Nogales, Sierra Vista's 14-6 loss to Baldwin Park and Gladstone's 14-0 loss to Glenn were the only setbacks for HL teams.

But the SAL squads appear to have the upper hands in tonight's pair of matchups with HL entries. Upland is still looking for its first point after a 23-0 drubbing by 4A power West Covina but should have the manpower to handle the Braves. The Montclair-Ontario contest could be a close one.

Damien will try to rebound from its loss to the Saints against a team that took an even worse beating last week. San Gabriel, 40-14 loser to Temple City, will visit the Spartan field tonight at 8.

Ganesha and Pomona will take lengthy bus rides before their 8 p.m. kickoffs tonight. The Giants will visit Torrance while the Red Devils travel to Oceanside to play Vista High.

After a 32-6 loss last week to South Hills, the top-ranked team in the CIF 4A, the Giants may welcome the opportunity to play Torrance, a 3A squad. But the Tartars, who played a scoreless tie with 4A neighbor South Torrance last week, certainly don't figure to be pushovers for the team from Pomona.

The Devils, 22-6 losers to Monrovia last week, may have the toughest opponent of any valley team this time around in Vista, the fifth-ranked team in all of San Diego County.

Bob Baiz, after notching his 100th coaching win last week against Damien, will take his Saints to Valencia for an 8 p.m. contest. Valencia lost a 7-6 squeaker to El Toro last week.

Meanwhile, Ken Gunn's Mustangs will try to rebound from their opening loss to Nogales in a 7:30 matchup tonight at Rowland. Los Altos whitewashed the Raiders last week, 48-0.

Tonight's other games find American Christian hosting Huntington Valley Christian at John Galvin Park at 7:30 p.m. and Edgewood at Chaffey, Ontario Christian at Yucca Valley and La Verne Lutheran at San Jacinto, all at 8 p.m.

At 3 p.m. today, Len Hassler made his Webb School coaching debut when the Golden Gauls opened their season at California School for the deaf in Riverside.

Hassler, who has been at Webb for one year, previously coached football in Hawaii. He replaces Les Perry.

One valley team will play Saturday. Claremont will host Glendora, 33-27 loser to St. Francis last week, at Citrus College at 7:30 p.m.

Phillies play like winners

By the Associated Press

The Philadelphia Phillies are talking, and more importantly playing, like winners once again.

"Only a monumental collapse can beat us now, and we're not capable of that," said veteran catcher Tim McCarver, whose two-run homer helped Philadelphia beat the St. Louis Cardinals 7-3 Thursday night behind the pitching of Steve Carlton, who posted his 19th victory.

"That's the way we played the first part of the year," observed Carlton. "We're starting to play again like we know how."

The victory kept the Phils six full games ahead of second-place Pittsburgh in the National League East, offsetting the Pirates' 5-4, 10-inning triumph over the Chicago Cubs.

The Phils' magic number is now five—any combination of five Philadelphia wins or Pittsburgh losses will give the Phils the division title.

Carlton, 19-6, gave up seven hits and struck out nine over the first eight innings before tiring. Ron Reed pitched a scoreless ninth.

Carlton should get at least two more starts in his bid to reach the 20-victory plateau.

"I won't be out there pressing," he said, "but I strongly want to win 20. That is the goal of any starting pitcher. It is like a hitter seeking to hit .300."

The Phils broke the game open with three runs in the fourth inning, two of them on McCarver's third home run of the season.

Three players were hit by pitches in the late innings. In the bottom of the eighth, Cards reliever Al Hrabosky—raked in the eighth inning Wednesday night when the Phillies scored eight runs—hit Bobby Tolan and Greg Luzinski with pitches.

The Phillies claimed it was deliberate, that Hrabosky was angry and frustrated by his earlier performance. In the ninth, a pitch from Reed hit the Cards' leadoff hitter, Hector Cruz.

Home plate umpire Dick Stello issued a warning to Reed, which carries with it an automatic $100 fine.

"It was worth it, whatever it cost," said Phillies Manager Danny Ozark. "We'll pay the fine. I'll pay it myself."

Pirates 5, Cubs 4

The Pirates came up with about as unlikely a hero as possible—Ed Ott, a 25-year-old rookie third-string catcher who was making his first major league start.

First Ott made a spectacular tag on a play at the plate to prevent the winning run from scoring in the bottom of the ninth. Then he rapped a run-scoring double in the 10th to score Rennie Stennett with the decisive tally.

"I was looking for all breaking balls," said Ott, a left-handed hitter. "They knew as well as I did that I had never faced a lefthander before.

Chalk's boot hurts Angels

ANAHEIM (AP) — It's been said that you can hit Dave Chalk a ground ball 100 times and he'll make the play 99 times.

Thursday night at Anaheim Stadium must have been the 100th time for the normally slick-fielding Angel shortstop.

He didn't make the play and it cost the California Angels four runs.

Ultimately, California came back to catch Texas at 5-5 in the eighth inning but the effort went for naught as Mike Hargrove jolted a Dick Drago pitch ove the right field fence in the ninth to present the harassed Rangers with a 6-5 victory.

The win tightened up the race for fourth place in the American League West. By gaining a split of the four-game series, Texas moved back within a half game of the fourth-place Angels.

"That one ground ball turned the whole game around," said Angels Manager Norm Sherry. "It's too bad because Chalk is such an adept fielder."

Trailing 5-3, the Angels rallied for two runs in the eighth to create a temporary tie.

Dave Collins opened the inning with an inside-the-park homer down the right field line which caromed off the box seat railing and got behind Texas outfielder Jeff Burroughs. It was the first inside the-park job by a California player since Rudy Meoli connected at Kansas City in 1973 and the first by the Angels in this park since Rick Reichardt in 1969.

Jerry Remy kept the inning going with a bunt single. One out later, Bob Jones singled to chase rookie Texas starter Tommy Boggs in favor of Steve Hargan. Hargan yielded a single by Mario Guerrero which tied the game but Jones was trapped between second and third and tagged out.

"A bad job of base running," said Sherry.

In the ninth, Hargrove drilled his seventh homer of the year to pin the loss on Drago, 7-8. Hargan, who has the same record, got the victory.

Tanner is upset in PSW tennis

LOS ANGELES — Jimmy Connors and Ilie Nastase moved into the third round of the Pacific Southwest Open Tennis Championships with straight set victories Thursday but another favorite tumbled out of the running.

Hard-serving Roscoe Tanner, Wimbledon semi-finalist this year, lost to a 22-year-old British player, John Lloyd, 1-6, 6-2, 7-6.

Tanner was seeded eighth in the $125,000 tournament at UCLA's Pauley Pavillion.

Nastase, the colorful Rumanian who is seeded third, had no trouble with Tom Gullikson of Dayton, Ohio, winning 6-1, 62, but Connors had to fight back in the second set of his match against Australia's Geoff Masters.

After losing the first set to the top-seeded Connors, 6-1, Masters began powering his groundstrokes and forced the set into a tiebreaker.

Masters took a 6-3 lead, but Connors rose to the occasion by blistering forehands and backhands. Connors then belted a service ace past Masters for the set, 7-6, and the match.

Connors has not lost a set in his firs two matches and meets Colin Dibley of Australia Friday night.

Nastase breezed past the overmatched Gullikson. The third-seeded Nastase reeled off five straight games to win the first set and was content to rely on his serve and volley game in the second set. He meets Charlie Pasarell of San Juan, P.R. Friday in another third-round match.

"It was difficult to play him (Gullikson)," said Nastase after the match in which he was again on his best behavior. "I think he was probably scared to play me and I had never played him before. I didn't know what to expect, but after the first set, I knew he was not playing very well."

Sports briefs

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State University said Thursday it has been notified that its Oct. 2 game with UCLA will be nationally televised by ABC-TV.

The telecast will change the game's starting time from 11:30 a.m. to 11:50 a.m. PDT, the university said.

ROME (AP)—Corrado Barazzutti of Italy beat John Newcombe of Australia 7-5, 6-1, 6-4 today to give Italy a 1-0 lead in the semifinals of the Davis Cup tennis tournament.

The ailing Newcombe, who has been troubled by a sore arm for most of the season, appeared in good form for only five games. He led 4-1 in the first set, then he began faultering constantly as Barazzutti forced him up and down the court with consistent play.

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP) — One unidentified $10 exacta ticket-holder collected $17,279 Thursday at Bay Meadows, and nine $5 bettors cashed in for $8,639.50 each — the largest exacta payoff in Northern California thoroughbred racing history.

The winning fifth-race combination was Aquilegia, an 18-1 shot, and Line O' Who, at 60-1, was second.

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Bucks announced Thursday the signing of their two top picks in the 1976 college player draft—No. 1 Quinn Buckner of Indiana and second-round choice Alex English of South Carolina.

TOKYO (AP) — Fullback Cliff Martin scored three touchdowns today to lead Grambling to a 42-16 victory over Morgan State in the first U.S. collegiate regular season football game outside the Western hemisphere.

Jazz official says Wicks won't report

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Forward Sidney Wicks will not report to the New Orleans Jazz preseason training camp Friday, a team spokesman said.

Wicks, a five-time performer in the National Basketball Association All-Star game, was acquired by the Jazz in a cash transaction with the Portland Trailblazers earlier this month.

He was in the final year of his contract with Portland.

The Jazz acquired the contract, but both the team and Wicks have said they want something that will cover more than just the one year remaining. Wicks' attorney, Sam Gilbert of Los Angeles, said his client will not report until a long-term contract is signed.

Should Wicks remain idle through the season, he will become a free agent able to auction himself off to the highest bidder, said Jazz Vice President Barry Mendelson.

Wicks was unavailable for comment.

The 6-foot-9 forward was chosen in the first round of the 1971 draft after finishing his college career at UCLA.

During his five seasons in the NBA, he averaged more than 20 points and 10 rebounds per game.

"He's a big forward with the quickness and moves of a small forward," said Mendelson.

Miller rolls easily along in Kaiser event

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Miller picked the ball out of the cup and gave a jaunty little wave to his mother and father, standing a couple of hundred yards away on the lawn of Miller's home.

He'd just scored a hole in one, mentioned he figured his mother "probably thought that was real neat," and then, stopping to chat with neighbors, watching his kids playing in the gallery, strolled—casual as could be—to a course-record 63 and a two-stroke lead in the first round of the $175,000 Kaiser International Open Golf Tournament.

He was so relaxed and easygoing, so obviously enjoying himself, one tour regular observed he may be "so relaxed he could fall down and break a leg."

"After all, it's just a game, isn't it? Right?" he asked. "It's just a game? Right? Right. I play it like a game. I don't play when I don't want to. If I played it like a profession, maybe I'd do it a lot different, work at it a lot harder, play more often. I don't know. But playing like I do, I think I won't get burned out like some guys. I think playing this way will let me be around a long time."

Miller, firmly entrenched as one of the game's outstanding performers—when he wants to be—as usual skipped many of the summer tournaments on the tour. He's played only one other since July.

And that's one big factor that makes him a favorite, he feels.

"You look at my record," he said Thursday. "Almost all the tournaments I've won, I think there's 21 of them, have come right after I've had a break, had a rest. I think I won maybe one or two that didn't come after a rest. There's just no point in me going out there and fighting it. I might as well go home. And I do. It's bye-bye Johnny."

Miller, who won the Tucson Open, the Bob Hope Classic and the British Open earlier in the year, left no doubt that he planned to win this one—on his home grounds—for the third consecutive time.

"This score was no fluke," he said. "Look. I'm driving it straight and long. My irons are always good. My putting is excellent. What more do you want? And besides that, it's my home course.

Michigan to sink Navy

By The Associated Press

Michigan, now comfortably established as the nation's No. 1 college football team, is expected to make things very uncomfortable for Navy's sinkable Middies Saturday.

The Wolverines, who led The Associated Press poll by only one point over Ohio State after struggling to a 40-27 victory over Wisconsin in their opening game, widened the gap over the Buckeyes to 158 points after mauling Stanford 51-0 last week.

Michigan has a powerful offense keyed around a devastating running game that produced 516 yards against Stanford and led Navy Coach George Welsh to proclaim that the Wolverines have "the best all-around backfield I have ever seen in college football."

That was quite a sweeping statement, considering Welsh was a Penn State assistant when the Nittany Lions had quarterback John Hufnagel and running backs Franco Harris and Lydell Mitchell.

While Michigan figures to down the Middies, second-ranked Ohio State will meet giant-killer Missouri.

Both Michigan and Ohio State will be at home, as will the next five teams in the rankings. No. 3 Pitt entertains Temple, fourth-ranked Oklahoma plays Florida State, fifth-rated UCLA faces the Air Force at night, No. 6 Nebraska opposes Texas Christian and seventh-ranked Georgia meets South Carolina.

Meanwhile, eighth-rated Maryland plays at Syracuse and No. 9 Texas A&M battles Houston in the Astrodome at night. Tenth-ranked Kansas is idle.

Among the Second Ten, it will be Iowa at No. 11 Penn State, Tulsa at 12th-ranked Arkansas, Vanderbilt at 13th-rated Alabama, Baylor at No. 14 Illinois in a regionally televised game, Rice at 15th-ranked Louisiana State at night, 16th-rated North Carolina at Army, No. 17 Mississippi at Southern Mississippi at night, 18th-ranked Boston College at Tulane at night, No. 19 Southern California at Purdue, and 20th-ranked Texas Tech at New Mexico at night.

Unpredictable Missouri upset Southern Cal in its opener, then in turn was upset by Illinois, causing a perplexing problem for this week's opponent, Ohio State.

"We'll assume the real Missouri team is the one that played Southern California," said Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes. "Missouri is explosive but evidently it had a little letdown after its great game at Southern Cal.

Missouri, however, will not be as explosive as Hayes thinks because injured, first-string quarterback Steve Pisarkiewicz will not play.

Pitt also has lost its quarterback — Bob Haygood — for Saturday's game against Temple, and for the season. He was injured last week, putting the pressure on junior Matt Cavanaugh, the Panthers' only quarterback with experience.

AL coasts into finals

Alta Loma High's girls' volleyball team advanced to the finals of the Gladstone Invitational Volleyball Tournament by downing Bonita, 15-9, 15-6, Thursday night.

Alta Loma is now 3-0 on the year under Coach Marilyn Shaw, including Wednesday night's 15-6, 15-1 win over Walnut in the tournament opener.

Jr. All Americans begin play Saturday

The Pomona Jr. All American football teams will open their seasons this weekend with two games scheduled on Saturday and two on Sunday at Pomona High.

Saturday's schedule begins at 11 a.m. when the Pomona Vikings visit the Glendora Tartans. The Pomona Steelers will host the Baldwin Park Roadrunners at 1 p.m. at Pomona High followed by a 3 p.m. game between the Pomona Mustangs and Rosemead Rebels.

On Sunday, the Pomona Sharks will host Hacienda Heights at 1 p.m. with the Pomona Bruins entertaining the Duarte Gorillas at 3 p.m.

This is Pomona's first season in Jr. All American football.

Claremont signups set

Late signups for Claremont AYSO will be held tonight from 6 to 8 p.m. at Conduit School.

Openings are still available on some soccer teams in each age group and will be filled on a first-come-first-served basis. Girls are particularly needed to fill openings.

Young close at Carlton

CALABASAS, Calif. (AP) — Donna Caponi Young was playing her home course and quite predictably had the lion's share of attention when she teed off in the $205,000 Carlton LPGA tournament at Calabasas Park Country Club.

But the local support was short-lived, Mrs. Young said Thursday following the first round of this richest tournament ever for women golfers.

"The gallery all left after I bogeyed the first two holes," Mrs. Young said with a grin.

They should have stayed around. Mrs. Young went on to card five birdies and the rest pars to put her just a stroke off the lead at 69 going into today's second round.

Mrs. Young and Judy Rankin, who became the first woman golfer to go over $100,000 in yearly earnings in July, are ranked the favorites for the $35,000—plus a cut of the gate— first prize in the Carlton.

Mrs. Rankin also stayed close to the lead shared by Susie Berning and Debbie Austin at 68 after the first day, firing a 2-under par 70 over the 6,218-yard, par 36-36—72 layout Calabasas layout.

"Two or three shots back on the first round is not a bad place to be," said Mrs. Rankin, who's won nearly $120,000 this year.

Mrs. Young, who came into this tournament off a victory in the Portland Classic, said playing at Calabasas may put a little extra pressure on her.

"Playing this course as the hometown favorite makes it little tougher on me," she commented. "But I'm trying to think of the Carlton as just another tournament."

Miss Austin, an eight-year tour veteran seeking her first LPGA victory, said after her impressive opening round that she felt like she had her game in tip-top shape.

"I feel like I could have shot a 63 or 64," she remarked. "I was hitting the ball right to the pin all day."

Miss Austin ranked 40th on the LPGA earnings list in June, but has since jumped to 19th with nearly $25,000 won. She credits Shirley Englehorn, the long-time LPGA player, with helping her improve her game.

"Shirley really helped me with a swing tip," Miss Austin said. "She helped me turn my hook into a fade, and I'm averaging 10 yards more on my drives.

And a male golf professional, Bob Rosberg, gave her some putting tips what helped her get off to a good start in the Carlton, Miss Austin said.

"Bob helped me on the putting green here yesterday," she said. "I was really having trouble with my putting, but it was better today."

Among those who had trouble with their putting—and the course itself—during the first round—were Kathy Whitworth, Jane Blalock and Jan Stephenson.

All were considered top contenders for the rich first prize, but all three struggled to opening-round 77s.

WINS COURT BATTLE FOR CHILD — Doan Thi Hoang Anh won her battle to get back her 4-year-old son when the Iowa Supreme Court ruled Wednesday that the John Nelson family must return Doan Van Binh to his natural mother. She had given him up for adoption during the final days before the fall of South Vietnam, where the family lived at the time. The Nelson family of Forest City, Iowa believed it had adopted the boy legally and waged a painful year-long custody battle. The natural mother, above, lives in Great Falls, Mont.

Melody in Akron art

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — A half-ton sculpture at the University of Akron's new Music Speech and Theater Arts building can be played as a musical instrument.

The sculpture is by Pennsylvania artist Harry Bertoia and consists of five shimmering clusters of flexible copper alloy rods, reminiscent of reeds or cattails, ranging in height from four feet to more than eight feet.

California cars get less mileage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency said 1977 automobiles designed to pass California's rigid pollution standards will get less mileage than those in other states — but still better than this year.

The new cars will get 4 per cent less fuel economy than automobiles sold in other states on a sales weighted average basis.

But the EPA said California cars do show a mileage gain over the 1976 cars that is roughly equal to those sold in other states.

The improved mileage is the result of better engines, new engine combinations and reduction in the size of many cars, the agency said.

The Volkswagen Rabbit diesel got 52 miles per gallon in the agency's simulated highway driving cycle and 39 m.p.g. in simulated city driving for the best results for a California designed car.

The lowest mileage was recorded by Dodge Monacos and Plymouth Furys equipped with eight-cylinder, 440-cubic-inch engines. Both cars got nine miles per gallon in the EPA city driving cycle.

In the EPA California tests, 39 cars tied for the top 10 spots. Measured according the the EPA's combined mileage figures, which assumes 55 per cent city driving and 45 per cent highway driving, the top cars were:

1. VW Rabbit diesel, 44 m.p.g.
2. VW Dasher diesel, 40 m.p.g.
3. Datsun B210, Datsun F10, 34 m.p.g.
4. Chevrolet Chevette, Mazda 808, 32 m.p.g.

Viet woman wins right to child

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A Vietnamese mother who left her seven children in an orphanage while the Communists advanced on Saigon says "I am so happy I don't know what word you can use" over a court decision returning one child to her.

"I am exciting and nervy," said Doan Thi Hoang Anh, 33, in a telephone interview Wednesday from Great Falls, Mont., where she lives with four of her children.

"It's like losing a son. We were hoping for a miracle," was the reaction of John Nelson, 33, the 6-year-old boy's foster father for the last 18 months. "We're happy we've had a year and a half with Ben."

Iowa Supreme Court Chief Justice C. Edwin Moore wrote in the unanimous decision that "the Nelsons have rendered exceptional service in his (Ben's) behalf. Under this record, someone must be hurt."

Ben, whose real name is Doan Van Binh, is one of seven brothers and sisters who escaped capture in the final days of the Saigon regime. Their mother left them in a Friends of Vietnam Children orphanage with a request to get them out of the country, according to court records.

Their father had just been killed, and the court noted, "It was only after an incredible ordeal Anh and the children were able to escape the same fate."

Miss Anh, as she is known in Great Falls, fled Vietnam and entered the United States as a refugee on Aug. 5, 1975.

She said she never gave the orphanage permission to have her children adopted. When they arrived in the United States, she traced them through the Denver office of the orphanage sponsors.

The Nelsons contended that Anh had abandoned her children and that Binh's best interests would be served by his being left with them.

But the court said Anh was "a woman of extraordinary courage, perseverance and full compassion for her child."

Theology school hosts Kent State president Oct. 8

Glenn A. Olds, president of Kent State University, Ohio, will address the School of Theology Founders' Day dinner at Griswold's Pavilion in Claremont on Oct. 8.

The School of Theology, the oldest seminary in the Pacific Southwest, is celebrating its 20th anniversary in Claremont. It was founded in 1885 and moved to Claremont in 1957.

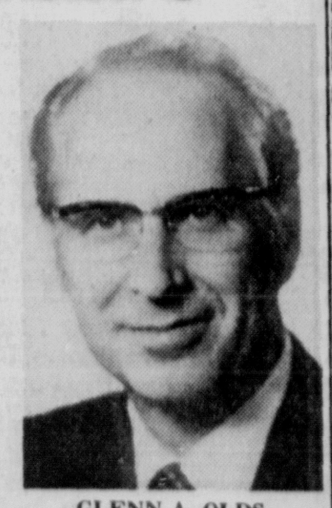
Olds' government service includes being the United States representative to the United Nations Economic and Social Council, with the rank of ambassador, from 1969 to 1971. He was manpower policy assistant at the White House from 1968 to 1969.

Olds has been president at Kent State during the investigations of the violence there in May 1970.

He is a former president of Springfield College in Massachusetts and is an ordained Methodist minister.

He is the author of several books and is an occasional guest editor for the Saturday Review.

The evening's program will feature the original trustees who guided the school when it left the USC campus and moved to Claremont. The school was originally established as the Maclay College of Theology in San Francisco but moved to the USC campus in 1948.



GLENN A. OLDS

The United Methodist Church, which founded the institution, has always insisted in an ecumenical program. Students preparing for the ministry in 30 denominations are enrolled. The school has a student body of 330 and a faculty of 25.

A luncheon meeting honoring the founders will be held on Oct. 8 at 12:15 p.m. at Griswold's Hacienda Room. Presiding at the luncheon will be Will H. Hildebrand, for 20 years an executive at the Methodist Church headquarters in Los Angeles.

ROLLING STONE

GREGG ALLMAN'S TALKING again — this time to the press. Allman has been keeping a low profile since testifying that ex-ALLMAN BROTHERS road manager JOHN "SCOOTER" HERRING had trafficked in drugs (Herring recently received a 75-year sentence). Meantime, other Allmans had been making loud breakup noises, tying the demise of the band to Gregg's testimony.

In an interview with Rolling Stone editors Patrick Snyder and Cameron Crowe in L.A., Allman said he testified because, "I was up against the wall. Two days before I had to go to the grand jury I went to Scooter and said, 'What in hell am I gonna do?' So he said, 'I'm going to go in there and plead the Fifth Amendment. Don't worry about it'. My lawyer kept assuring Scooter that before I even went in there that they already had enough to send him up."

Allman said that a week before Herring was arrested, guitar player DICKIE BETTS turned in his resignation: "So that stuff about me breaking up the band is such a damn farce. It's the best band that's ever been. I worked body and soul and put a lot of sweat in that band, but they didn't respect me as the leader. You don't know the rough times I had of it. They'd come to me and say, 'Well, you got us another album written?' Like I could spit out one on the spot.

"The band was broken up long before the trial came down. I remember being in a rehearsal and them saying, 'Man, that sure is a drag you had to go to the grand jury, I sure am glad I didn't have to do it. Are they going to call me?' All of them scared like rabbits."

Allman said he's off drugs now and hasn't had a drink in nine weeks. He's been recording a handful of songs with CHER ("Cher has been the reason that I've straightened up my act"), and rehearsing with his new group, the LAID-BACK BAND, composed of Georgia musicians.

"I surely hope this (the testimony) doesn't ruin my career," he said. "I want to get out there and keep plugging. I'm here to play music. I'm not here to be an actor in a soap opera."

PAUL McCARTNEY DECREED the first week of September "Buddy Holly Week" and threw a party at London's swank Orangerie restaurant for Buddy's producer, NORMAN PETTY. McCartney is not just another fan of the late Holly's, he happens to own the bulk of the Holly catalogue, and couldn't be more pleased with the latest Holly revival (LINDA RONSTADT'S version of "That'll Be the Day" is rising on the charts, MCA is releasing three Holly maxi-singles in Britain, and the WINGS' own DENNY LAINE is recording "It's So Easy" and "I'm Looking for Someone To Love").

But back to the party. Guests included ELTON JOHN, ERIC CLAPTON, the WHO'S ROGER DALTREY, and members of 10CC, ROXY MUSIC, QUEEN and WINGS. Petty surprised everyone when he presented McCartney with a framed, glass-enclosed plaque which contained the cufflinks Holly was wearing when he died in that 1959 plane crash. Petty said Holly had borrowed the cufflinks from him.

SHORTS: FRANK SINATRA has recorded NEIL DIAMOND'S "My Way"-ish "Dry Your Eyes" off Diamond's "Beautiful Noise" LP, and ROBBIE ROBERTSON can't believe it. "To me, 'Dry Your Eyes' is the weirdest song on the LP," said Robbie, who produced "Beautiful Noise." "Frank Sinatra . . . I would've picked that last." . . . During the audience singalong on "Song Sung Blue" at L.A.'s Greek Theater, Diamond stuck the mike in front of DIANA ROSS. Diana sang harmony — after getting Neil to plug her two-week stand at L.A.'s Music Center . . . DAVID BOWIE's begun work on his next album in France . . . LABELLE taped five TV shows in one week in L.A. recently ("Dinah," "Rock Concert," "American Bandstand," "Soul Train" and "Cos"). The medium is the message.

KIM FOWLEY, THE ESTRANGED founder-producer of the RUNAWAYS, those nymphet heavy-metal rockers, has formed a new band to give them a little competition. He's named the group VENUS AND THE RAZOR BLADES, and members range from 14 to 19. It's not another all-female outfit — Venus, in fact, is a boy, and there's another male among the five-person crew. Science fiction, fantasy buffs to present 3-day Fantasy Faire

The Fantasy Faire, a three-day meeting of writers and artists specializing in science fiction, Gothic and fantasy, will be held at the Hacienda Hotel in Los Angeles Oct. 1-3.

The program will include panel discussions, films, an art show, costume contest and banquet. Tickets are $5 for each day, students $2.50. The activities will run from 4 p.m. to midnight Oct. 1, 10 a.m. to midnight Oct. 2, and 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Oct. 3. The Huckster's Room will offer exhibits, books, pulp magazines, paperbacks and posters.

Taking part will be Bob Clampett, creator of Beany and Cecil the Seasick Sea Serpent; science fiction author Ray Bradbury; fantasy and Gothic writer Marion Zimmer Bradley; Jim Danforth, Academy Award nominee for animation; George Clayton Johnson, co-author of "Logan's Run" and script writer for "Star Trek," and A.E. Van Vogt, author of "Slan" and "World of Null-A."

There will be a display of art by Russ Manning, illustrator of the "Tarzan" comics.

NBC sets private eye series

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A new recruit for NBC's Sunday night sleuths? The network announces that Dennis Dugan will star in a 90-minute program development project, "Richie Brockelman, Private Eye."

The pilot film will be produced by Universal Studios, which also makes "Columbo," "McMillan," "McCloud" and other members of the Sunday night mystery movie group.

Dugan will appear as "a young and inexperienced but college-educated private eye." He has previously appeared on segments of "The Waltons," "Columbo," "MASH" and "Cannon."

Columbia sells division to E.M.I.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Columbia Pictures Industries has announced conclusion of a deal to sell its music publishing division to the British firm E.M.I.

The two firms also completed a financing agreement in which E.M.I. will invest in four of Columbia's motion pictures.

'It became a job'

Alpert off on solo flight

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Herb Alpert has embarked on a solo career that is certain to take him far away from the happy-go-lucky music he played with the Tijuana Brass.

That's fine with him.

Because for all the happiness that the TJB's music brought to people around the world, what it ultimately brought band leader Alpert was a lot of grief. He put down his trumpet in 1969, thinking he might never play again. For five years, he didn't.

"I lost interest. I was repeating myself. It became a job," the 39-year-old musician recalled recently in his big office at A&M Records, which he continues to preside over with partner Jerry Moss.

Alpert had come to a point where the success he'd been enjoying since "The Lonely Bull" was released in 1962 became too much to handle. Emotional problems were compounded by frustration with his horn playing.

"When I made those records (with the Tijuana Brass), I wasn't trying to be corny or commercial or anything — I was just playing the music that was coming out," he reflected.

"It was easy for me to do; I felt like I was cheating. Then the process didn't work, and I tried to think my way into it."

After quitting he went through a heavy period of critical self-evaluation. His first marriage broke up in 1970.

Alpert stayed on at his record company, producing other artists, and in time, he says now, his problems worked themselves out naturally.

In 1974 he married Lani Hall, former lead singer in Brasil 66, and put together the TJB again.

The musician says he was ready then to turn a different way musically but he was interested first in recapturing the good feelings of the TJB's early years and then giving it up on his own terms.

He made the break for good last year and now is out with an album, "Just You and Me," that shows a deeper dimension to Herb Alpert. The album is much moodier, much more interesting than his Tijuana Brass records.

"Now I think my observations musically are much closer to what I'm feeling," Alpert remarked. "That's very important because I feel creativity is not something you think about. It just happens."

Alpert, a thin, dark haired man with rugged good looks, doesn't reject his past work; he says he just wasn't given to introspection in those days. Now his music is coming from deep inside.

He credits much of his comeback to a teacher in New York who, Alpert says, operates on the theory that musicians, like athletes, must train their muscles to perform to a natural rhythym. A trumpet is merely a piece of plumbing, this thinking goes — the musician playing it is the real instrument and must be conditioned to respond to intuitive timings without thinking about them.

"I feel like I'm to that point again where it's coming through me instead of me being intellectual about it," Alpert says slowly, in the thoughtful, introspective manner he has. "That takes care of itself when you're in balance."

There's just one problem. A lot of people don't seem ready to accept Alpert's new musical stance. A&M executives say a lot of so-called progressive radio stations won't even listen to the solo album because they assume it's full of the TJB sound that they now consider lightweight.

Alpert realizes that imagewise he is in a transition period with the public. That's why he has no plans to tour unless "Just You and Me" is a big success.

'Does he do comedy?'

Crenna back in sitcom

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Crenna recalls what prompted him to undertake a new situation comedy:

"It was when my agent was talking to a producer about a comedy show for me. This producer had once worked on a comedy series I did 25 years ago or more; he wasn't even a writer, he was a 'joke-thrower.'

"When my name was brought up, the producer said, 'Does he do comedy?'"

Richard Crenna does. Evidence can be found on the new CBS Monday night series, "All's Fair." A much younger Richard Crenna can be found in re-runs of "Our Miss Brooks" and "The Real McCoys." And, in fact, Crenna's experience with comedy dates back to his boyhood, when he played dozens of cracked-voiced adolescents on radio shows from "A Date with Judy" to "The Adventures of Ozzie and Harriet."

"If that producer didn't remember that I did comedy," said Crenna, "I figured it was time for me to prove it."

"All's Fair" casts him as a 49-year-old conservative columnist in love with a 23-year-old liberal photographer, played by Bernadette Peters. They do not live together; television isn't ready for that.

"But it's obvious from what they say that they have a physical relationship going," Crenna added.

Richard Crenna is a hometown boy, born here 49 years ago and raised in a series of downtown hotels his parents managed. His radio career helped support the family and put himself through the University of Southern California. When "Our Miss Brooks" converted to television, Crenna went along. He played the callow teen-ager Walter Denton for three years, until he was well into his 20s.

"The Real McCoys" allowed him to grow up as husband and father, and the comedy series with Walter Brennan and Kathleen Nolan lasted six prosperous years. Next came two seasons of "Slattery's People," a fondly remembered series that was ahead of its time in dealing with serious subjects.

"Because of 'Slattery's,' I had to turn down an offer for 'The Sand Pebbles' with Robert Wise," said the actor. "When we were suddenly canceled, I told Bob and within 10 days I was shooting the picture in Taiwan."

After that came a succession of films: "Wait Until Dark," "Star," "Doctor's Wives," "Marooned," "Red Sky at Morning," "Catlow," "A Man Called Noon," "Breakheart Pass" — "mostly dramas, because the last series I had done was 'Slattery's.'"

During the past dozen years Crenna has been offered more series than he can remember.

"I turned them all down," he said. "For one thing, I wanted to spend more time with my kids (Seana, Richard, Maria). Also I felt restricted as an actor to be playing a single role."

Earlier this year he was called by producer-writer Bob Schiller, whom he had known from Desilu days.

"Bob was working on 'I Love Lucy' while I was doing 'Our Miss Brooks,'" said Crenna. "He told me about the Washington comedy he, Bob Weiskopf and Rod Parker were doing for Norman Lear. I was 99 per cent against it. Having made a dent in the European market with films, I was looking for a series as a detective or cowboy — something with foreign appeal.

"The producers got to my wife Penni and did a real selling job. She felt it would be an attractive role for me. Besides, it would remind people who had forgotten that I could do comedy."

Approaching sunspots a threat to CBing?

By INK DIPPER

(Editor's NOTE: Ink Dipper (KYZ-3916) is the handle of the editor of The CB Times-Journal.)

Will 1978 be the beginning of the end for CBing in America, or is that just a cry of "wolf?"

We're not crying wolf, but there is something disturbing ahead for CBing as we move toward the peak of the 11-year sunspot cycle.

Sunspot activity causes CB signals to "skip" thousands of miles. These bouncing signals block out local signals and knock out the normal effective range of a CB radio.

The peak of activity will begin in 1978 and last from three to five years. No one can say for certain how bad the problem will be, but there is little optimism.

At least two independent studies suggest dire problems for CBers. Proposed solutions offer little hope.

It seems inconceivable that sunspots, which are eruptions on the sun's surface can cause havoc on the world's most widely used form of wireless communications. But it happens, and here's how.

A normal CB radio wave is like light from an electric bulb — it goes out in all directions. The signals that go up simply pass through the earth's atmosphere.

But when sunspots build in intensity, they increase the amount of electrical energy in a layer of the atmosphere known as the ionosphere. The energy buildup causes the layer to become reflective — just like a mirror. And instead of passing through the atmosphere, the signal reflects — or skips — back to earth.

We CBers who went through the last skip peak are probably the least optimistic about what will happen in 1978. Sunspot skip sometimes decreased range by 75 per cent or more. There is always a small amount of skip, especially in the summer. But this is usually unrelated to sunspots and nothing like the skip-in the last peak period.

The Federal Communications Commission is aware of what is coming. FCC officials have been studying two reports, one done for the U.S. Department of Commerce and the other for the President's Office of Telecommunications Policy.

The dilemma, the studies point out, is clear. The peak will come and skip will increase.

Also, sources inside the FCC say, that the agency has a report stating much the same thing.

A solution to all of this would be to move the citizen's band to a higher frequency range, one not hit as hard by the "skip" phenomenon is now on the 27 megahertz range, and suggested ranges for the move are the 50 and 220 megahertz range.

But a move to the higher frequency would make the average CB set cost more — possibly as much as $1,000 — because of added electronic refinements needed to operate at the higher level.

If the FCC did move CB up the frequency spectrum — and abandoned the 27 megahertz frequencies — it would mean that Americans would own millions of useless two-way radios tuned to frequencies that no longer could be legally used.

Whether the FCC takes action or not, we don't believe the end of CBing is at hand. Too many people have CB radios now, and some of them will ride it out. But the phenomenal growth of CB use could end unless a practical solution can be found.

KPFK Folk festival slated at Calabasas

Radio station KPFK will present the International Folk Festival and Ethnic Bazaar at the historic Leonis Adobe, 23537 Calabasas Road, Calabasas, from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. Oct. 2 and 3.

The festival will offer costumed folk dancers and musicians, and the bazaar will include imports, craftwork, art objects and food. Folk dancing will be open to all. Among the 20 participating groups will be the Aman Folk Ensemble, the Liberty Assembly, the Aisha Ali Troupe, the Mispoche and the Odessa Balalaikas.

Nationally known folk singer Pete Seeger will star in shows at 4 and 8 p.m. Oct. 2 and at 12:30 p.m. Oct. 3. He will be joined by Peter Yarrow, formerly of Peter, Paul and Mary.

Seeger, composer of "Where Have All the Flowers Gone?" and "Turn, Turn, Turn," was a trailblazer in American folk music. The 1950s hit, "Good Night, Irene," by Seeger's group, The Weavers, was the first "folk song" to break the pattern of popular music. The Weavers broke ground for The Kingston Trio, Peter, Paul and Mary, and singers like Joan Baez, Judy Collins and Bob Dylan.

Tickets to the festival are $3.50 each day, children $1. The site is reached by taking the Ventura Freeway to the Calabasas exit and turning east.

Piano recital set at UCLA

Pianist Peter Frankl will make his Los Angeles debut in a recital in UCLA's Royce Hall at 8:30 p.m. Oct. 15.

His program will include Mozart's Sonata in D Major; Schumann's Sonata in F Sharp Minor; 15 Hungarian peasant songs by Bartok; and Chopin's Impromptus, Opp. 29, 36 and 51, Fantasy Impromptu, and Scherzo in B Minor.

Frankl's rise to international fame can be attributed in large part to his many appearances in Great Britain. His debut in London in 1962 soon led to appearances with the major British orchestras.

Frankl constantly tours throughout the world as a recitalist and soloist with major orchestras. His first North American tour, in 1967, began with appearances under George Szell in Cleveland and New York, which received critical acclaim.

Philharmonic plans 3 tours

The Los Angeles Philharmonic, conducted by Zubin Mehta, will make three tours during the 1976-77 season — one to the East Coast and two to Europe.

Shortly after beginning their 22-week winter season at the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center Oct. 21, Mehta and the orchestra will embark on a 26-day, 15-concert tour of Eastern Europe — Hungary (Budapest), Poland (Warsaw), Yugoslavia (Zagreb, Belgrade), Bulgaria (Sofia) and Czechoslovakia (Bratislava, Prague) — and Italy (Rome), as well as London and Vienna. The tour period is from Nov. 16 to Dec. 11.

In touring Eastern Europe, the Philharmonic becomes the only American orchestra to go behind the Iron Curtain, excepting for he Soviet Union, as part of the State Department's Bicentennial cultural presentations. The orchestra's performances in Hungary and Bulgaria will be the first ever given in those countries by an American symphonic organization under State Department auspices. No American orchestra has performed in these Iron Curtain countries since the Los Angeles Philharmonic itself played in Yugoslavia and Rumania as part of its State Department world tour in 1967.

Compositions by two of America's great composers, Aaron Copland (Symphony No. 3 and "Fanfare for the Common Man") and Charles Ives, are part of the tour repertoire. Each concert will feature one or more of the American works. Six other composers will be represented: Bartok, Brahms, Dvorak, Mahler, Mozart and Penderecki.

During the State Department tour, which includes two concerts in Rome, the orchestra will also return for three performances to London and Vienna, scenes of Philharmonic triumphs on its six-week European tour of 1974.

On their one-week Eastern U.S. tour in March 1977, Mehta and the Philharmonic will play two concerts in New York, and also appear in Philadelphia and Wilmington, Dela.

In May, Mehta and the Philharmonic will participate in a musical cruise aboard the new Carras oceanliner, MTS Danae, the first time in the history of commercial ocean travel that a tour of this kind will take place. Passengers will be able to mingle with musicians and enjoy chamber music and solo recitals on board ship. They will also be able to attend symphony concerts by Mehta and the Los Angeles Philharmonic in ports they will visit during the voyage.

'Billy' slated for TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Billy Jack" is coming to television. NBC has brought rights to the 1971 Tom Laughlin hit and plans to televise it this fall.

VOICE THEIR CHOICE — The five Tavares brothers, rising musical group, like to have a say in what songs they sing and record. They have three hits on the charts and are aiming at a television show.

The Tavares

Five brothers waiting to break into television

By Stan Mieses

The family that stays together, plays together — for bigger bucks — is a recording industry axiom. If you can crank them out like Jacksons or Osmonds, well that's just grand. Families, they tell us are fun to watch, and the trend has spread smoothly between pop stars and TV stars

Tavares, five brothers known collectively by their surname, are pop stars waiting to break into television. That's the way it works these days. You make a few records, get a couple of solid hits off the albums. Then you start shooting for beter club bookings, guest shots on TV variety shows and hope for a series of your own. That's the formula, and it often works. It works real well with artists who know what they want — lots of business. Families are very good that way.

Its worked well so far with Tavares; they have had hits off three different albums now.

"I don't think it ever works against us," said brother Ralph Tavares, eldest of the group. His brothers were introduced as Tiny, Chubby, Pooch and Butch, but we weren't sure who was whom, as no one looked small, fat, like a dog, or well, like a Butch.

Tavares, like many other groups in the pop-soul-disco mixed-bag genre, rely on their particular vocal sound to distinguish themselves. Harmony is the key to their success. They do not write most of their material, but they sign everything written for them with the unique Tavares signature. Their "It Only Takes A Minute" was a standout amid the muddie called disco music.

But it takes good original material to keep the bubbles coming out of the machine. For that, the group relies on their producer, Freddie Perrin. He solicits 40 to 50 songs for the group to hear, and then they all decide on the final nine or 10 they will record.

"We don't sing just anything they give us," explained "Pooch," who is probably called Arthur by his mother. "Like disco music is big, but we don't just sing disco, we don't grunt every three seconds. We get a chance to voice our choices."

These five natives of New Bedford, Mass., have been following the advice of their sixth and eldest brother John and have followed in the tradition of their father, a professional musician in the New England area.

"He used to play behind us when we were young," recalled Tiny, "but when we went to rock and roll, he cut us loose." Still, the brothers are cooking it up for the old man and they plan to include him on their next recording session, maybe even take him on tour.

"Though I don't know," said a worried Butch. "He might not like the road." They all laughed and winked and ribbed each other.

John Denvwr is heading east, on a 10-state eastern U.S. tour, following his record-breaking engagement out West in Lake Tahoe. He will headline, for the first time, at the Grand Old Opry, with an all-star supporting cast from the world of country music. This comes after a week solo and a week with Frank Sinatra at Harrah's in Tahoe. THAT'S show biz.

But that's not all for the busy Mr. Denver. Pop music's Sunshine Boy was slated to play the title role in a musical remake or Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," but it fell through .Walt Disney Studios has offered him the title role of "Johnny Appleseed." We think he'd be a natural for the title role of "The Jimmy Carter Story," when that one goes into production. The kilowatt power of those two smiles could reverse an eclipse.

Mary Kay Place, better known as Loretta Haggars from the Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman dope opera, is now and in-real life recording artist, after making her debut at the Fernwood Lanes' Grill several months ago on TV. In this season's plans, Mary Kay (Loretta) will introduce her hit record "Vitamin L" on the show. Columbia Records hopes the song will actually become a hit from Ms. Place's forthcoming album. I've heard of life imitating art, television imitating life; now life imitates television. What kind of artists do we have here?

* * *

Albums we've listened to and liked lately: Roxy Music "Live", unfortunately their last together; "Sammy Walker," a fine folk-influenced singer who sounds a little like John Prine, but less ironic and more sentimental; The Heptones; "Night Food," a new reggae offering; "The New Phil Woods Album," about as enjoyable a jazz album as you'll hear this year, chockfull of fine players who like what they're doing; Philip Catherine's "Nairam," a spaced-out set from a master European guitarist in the Mahavishnu mold . . .

3 new films in the works

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New film projects —

The Aldrich Company and Lorimar Productions have purchased the new novel, "Someone is Killing the Great Chefs of Europe," by Nan and Ivan Lyons. The book is described as "a highly original blending of crime, comedy, cooking and sex" in European capitals.

"Ordinary People," a first novel by Judith Guest, will be the next project for Robert Redford's Wildwood Enterprises. Redford will not appear in the film, says producer Walter Coblenz.

Doty-Dayton Productions will distribute Ivan Tors' new movie, "Escape from Angola," about an American family caught amid revolution in Africa.

Celebrity tournaments latest craze with Hollywood stars

By DICK KLEINER

BIG SKY, Mont. — (NEA) — Hollywood is a town of fads. One of the hottest fads of the moment is the celebrity golf (or tennis, or anything) tournament.

You get a charitable sponsor, you assemble a plane load of stars or semi-stars, you go out and play golf (or tennis, or anything) and everybody is happy. The charity makes some money and the stars or semi-stars have a weekend on the house in some cheerful resort.

Almost every weekend, these days, you'll find a plane taking off, loaded with celebrities, bound for a resort to net some charity a few bucks.

I went along for one of these affairs. The charity was the Montana Association for Retarded Citizens. Michael Dante, who had made his starring movie, "Winterhawk," in Montana, was the host of record.

Everybody assembled at Los Angeles International Airport, where the drinking and eating began in a private room before the chartered plane took off.

The stars and semi-stars included Richard Anderson, Alan and Marilyn Bergman, Edd Byrnes, Jim Davis, Donna Douglas, James Gregory, Alan Hale, Werner Klemperer, George Lindsey, June Lockhart, John Marley, Ed Nelson, Hugh O'Brian, Skiles and Henderson and Jonathan Winters.

The plane ride was fun, mostly because of Winters. He got up in the aisle and then on the plane's intercom and did his thing. On the return trip, he was joined by Bill Skiles and Phil Henderson, a very talented team of young comics, in what has to be described as a comedic jam session.

They ad-libbed for about a half-hour, one sparking the other. Everybody crowded in the aisles to listen and it go so bad the stewardesses almost couldn't get through with their trays of drinks. Almost, but not quite.

Winters told me he is seriously thinking of retiring. He says he doesn't want to be an old comedian — he mentioned George Burns, Groucho Marx, Bob Hope — and said he'd rather quit when he was still young and sound.

Big Sky is the resort started by the late Chet Huntley. It is more than 7,000 feet up and truly spectacular. When we arrived at Bozeman Field there was a huge — for Bozeman — crowd waiting for us.

But they were disappointed. They had been under the impression Starsky and Hutch (Paul-Michael Glaser and David Soul) were coming.

There were dozens of kids with Starksy and Hutch T-shirts. There were handprinted signs: "Welcome Starsky and Hutch." As we filed through the crowds, they kept examining each new arrival, looking for their heroes. I put on my best Starsky expression — boredom. They weren't fooled.

It was a good weekend, marred by a few disappointments. The crowd at the golf tournament wasn't big enough to make money for the charity. But they said that, for a first attempt, it wasn't bad. They figured they'd try again next year.

George Lindsey's luggage was lost. Michael Dante's suitcase broke, and he went home with all his clothes in a plastic garbage bag. A few people got too drunk, a few husbands and wives had fights.

One of the highspots for me was meeting Huntley's widow, Tippy, a lovely, vivacious blonde. We talked about Chet and, as she was cleaning out their house, she gave me one of his old convention notebooks. I'll always treasure it.

Hepburn tickets on sale

Tickets will go on sale Monday for "A Matter of Gravity," starring Katharine Hepburn and opening Oct. 13 at the Ahmanson Theater of the Los Angeles Music Center.

The play opens the 10th season of managing director Robert Fryer and the Center Theater Group. Miss Hepburn plays the lady of a decaying British manor in the mature comedy by British playwright, Enid Bagnold. Noel Willman directs.

Tickets will be on sale at the box office and all agencies.

Freedom

The first legislative act proclaiming religious freedom was enacted in 1649 in St. Mary's City, Maryland's first settlement.

ANDRAE CROUCH and The Disciples will headline at the Great Gospel Concert in the Hollywood Bowl at 8 o'clock tonight. Also on the card are the Johnny Mann Singers, Dino, Danniebelle, Doug Lawrence and Lynn Mann. Ralph Carmichael conducts the orchestra.

Peter Falk to film 'Columbo'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — More "Columbos" for Peter Falk. The Emmy winner, who said earlier that he wouldn't return to his series, is now filming a new chapter, "An Old Fashioned Murder." He has agreed to make two more this season.

'Butterfly' set at Claremont

The Goldovsky Grand Opera Theater's production of "Madame Butterfly" will open the Claremont Colleges' 1976-77 Artist Course Series in Garrison Theater at 8:15 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

The Goldovsky Grand Opera Theater, a resident company from Boston, is currently on a coast-to-coast tour. The company features grand opera in English translation. A major concern of the Opera Theater is to help train young American singers. A few singers who have made their operatic debuts with the company are Adele Addison, Mildred Allen, Justine Diaz, McHenry Boatwright, Rosalind Elias, Robert McFerrin and Sherrill Milnes.

"Madame Butterfly" was first performed in the United States in the fall of 1906 in English, followed in 1907 by an Italian version at the Metropolitan Opera in New York. The Met cast featured in the leading roles Geraldine Farrar, Louise Homer, Enrico Caruso and Antonio Scotti.

This company of "Madame Butterfly" includes a cast of 30 and an orchestra of 24. Tickets are now available at the Garrison Theater box office and Mutual and Liberty agencies, or by calling 626-4523 and charging to Bankamericard or Master Charge.

GARTH "WOODY" ELLWOOD

I occasionally get letters and telephone calls from Weekend! readers regarding area restaurants or entertainment groups they think should be included on my rounds. And I've often thought it would be interesting to start a "Letters to Weekend!" or a column of commentary by any one of you who feel disposed to comment in print.

But I really hadn't pursued the idea until Laurie Hall of Pomona called me last month after hearing the group "Cartune" at Claremont's Beef 'n Barrel restaurant. She liked them so well she just HAD to tell someone about them.

So, this week I'm happy to welcome Laurie as sort of a guest columnist. "Cartune" turned her on and she thinks you'll like them, too. Her comments can be found on page 27.

I've been a customer of Di Censo's for many years and usually find myself ordering their fine prime rib when I visit. Last weekend, however, I dropped in late to hear John Kinshaw, new organist up there, but found myself in front of a plate of Momma Di Censo's spaghetti! Momma Mia! The Di Censo portion of spaghetti is generous, to say the least. The setting was delightful . . . flickering fire in the circle fireplace, cozy conversations in the booths lining the dining room, pleasant sounds coming from the organ bar. But in spite of me, I kept thinking of Momma and Poppa Di Censo (who makea da pasta froma scratch) cranking out the spaghetti in the delicatessen next door!

Di Censo's is a rather unique family business, I think. The Italian foods prepared at the restaurant can be obtained from the delicatessen for at-home preparation. Try it sometime. Di Censo Fine Cuisine is located at 1651 W. Foothill, Upland.

AROUND 'N ABOUT

. . . Trio Los Flamingos will entertain at Mingo's restaurant, 1190 E. Holt, Pomona, for the next two Saturday nights. This group includes Pepito Villa, "The Professor," who plays there regularly. So the next two Saturday nights should be alive with merry Mexican musical sounds at Mingo's. Villa, by the way, is composer and arranger of two songs recorded by Mingo Herrera, owner of the restaurant. Mingo tells me the records are getting some play on radio station K-KAR and are selling well.

. . . Castle owner Jim Francke's patience is wearing a little thin toward the company who was supposed to have installed a giant screen TV in his lounge by now. He was hoping to have it operating for the debut of Monday Night Football, and has customers of his Foothill Blvd. restaurant waiting in anticipation. He tells me it should be installed by next week, though(?).

. . . Billy Armstrong and Eddie Joe Downs will head a country music special called Ice House Country Jubilee at the Ice House tonight. The music starts about 9:00 with Armstrong, the "Mr. Fiddle" of country music, appearing several times during the evening. The show runs two nights, tonight and Saturday, at the Mt. Baldy restaurant.

. . . Outside seating is now offered by Casa de Narod in Chino. Narod has enclosed part of the outside roofed area with wrought iron grillwork to make a more relaxed and informal patio dining area.

. . . Management of the Magic Lamp, 8189 Foothill, Cucamonga, reports that "Rainbow" is making a hit with customers of their downstairs nightclub, the Rathskellar.

. . . Wayne Moore, the prime mover behind the group "Cartune" at the Beef 'n Barrel, is a product of Claremont High School. "It's kind of like coming home to play in Claremont," Wayne said. His grandparents, by the way, are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Overholtzer, long-time residents of La Verne until recently. Mr. Overholtzer, a prime mover himself, is a former city clerk, councilman, businessman and civic leader of that community.

. . . The group "Giant" returns to Elli's Forum next week, playing there Tuesday through Sunday. Owner Elli Cooper says the Forum crowd likes "Giant" and she's happy to have them back. But with the breakup of the short-lived "Cancerians," she's now planning to showcase a different group each Monday night for your dancing enjoyment.

ENTERTAINMENT REVIEW

By LAURIE HALL, POMONA

How many times have you gone to some classy bar with your honey for a quiet, sentimental evening together, to sip a drink or two and maybe murmur sweet nothings only to be blasted to bits by some loud tonedeaf band? We had just gotten our drinks when the band came on so we were stuck. And after the first sonic boom we found ourselves using hand signals and shouting our sweet nothings. Grimacing, we started to gulp down our drinks. It only took a couple of gulps, though, before we realized that THIS was something different and sank back in amazement to enjoy a second round.

We were listening for the first time to "Cartune," AKA "Not just another band," at the Beef and Barrel in Claremont. "Listening" is a paltry word, actually, for what we were doing because "Cartune" involves you totally.

Dissected the group is comprised of some pretty unlikely components — not exactly the sleek, dazzling young-things you might expect. But together they produce a fabulous sound experience you won't soon forget. Wayne Moore, the ginger-bearded piano player, rivals Elton John on the keys and has a voice amazing for its purity and range. The black girl, Brenda Moore (Mrs.), has charisma that won't quit and gorgeous voice to match that weaves through her husband's in perfect cadence, or stands on its own. Ralph Sappington, the guy on bass, gives the music a warm, steady undercurrent but he only comes truly alive when he plays those trumpets. Gabriel'd better watch out. And the drummer, Bob Dickson, not only knows his drums, but is very aware of theatric technique and timing, as they all are. In fact, what impressed me most was their polish and the compact unity of their performance. In comparison, their show as more like a GOOD Off-Broadway musical than a band's pacing in pauses from one tune to another.

Their songs ran the gamut — Yankee Doodle Dandy subsiding to nostalgic sweetness or tenement pathos, and back again, now loud now soft. It was a sparkling world in itself. Someone had opened a window on a parade and bright balloons came rushing and bobbing in. A kaleidoscope of emotions swirled past. And every song was as fresh and original as the first Spring.

Let me tell you, the misty eyes in that room weren't all due to booze, You won't often catch me shouting "Bravo!" pounding tables, and clapping hands in a BAR. And all this for the price of a few drinks?

If you're one of those looking for total everything, don't go out and buy an octophonic system. Go instead to the Beef and Barrel in Claremont tonight 9:00 p.m. to 1:30 a.m., and have the world brought to you — by "Cartune."

Ed. Note: Weekend! invites your letters pertaining to restaurant/nightclub happenings in the Pomona Valley. Review material submitted for consideration should be sent to: Progress Bulletin Weekend!, Box 2708, Pomona, Calif. 91766.

Joyce Brothers
Too much pressure

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: We have a 17-year-old son who is extremely bright but never works up to his potential and has almost no ambition. This hurts me since I had hoped he'd take some interest in my business. I'm not insistent, however, and would be happy if he'd show some interest in anything. My wife and I have urged him to study and maintain good grades so he can get into a superior college. Now he's balking and we're angry and disappointed. — R.H.

Dear R.H.: Family therapists at the National Institute of Mental Health suggest that one good way to help a boy through the troubles of adolescence is to get him into a "loving fight" with his father. The only catch, they point out, is the father's emotional health and his ability to overcome his own identity crisis that usually comes in middle age.

Without knowing it, parents can apply too much pressure by constantly reminding their children what they expect of them. The drive to achieve and excel can become so oppressive that an adolescent may simply rebel and assert his individuality by calling a stop and quitting. Too much pressure may make him depressed and bored.

He may feel he is carrying not only his own problems but the aspirations and ambitions of his parents also. The load becomes too heavy and can make an oldster out of a youngster. A child should be able to experience pleasures without adult expectations.

Maybe one of the most important things you can do for your son right now is to relax, enjoy him and let up on the pressure.

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: A fellow I've been dating cried at a movie last night. I was shocked. The movie was sad and I cried too, but it flipped me to think this man would cry. Does this mean he's weak? I just can't imagine my brothers crying over anything. I'd sure never tell them or my family about it. — T.T.

Dear T.T.: Crying has nothing to do with "weakness." Some people who have great courage and strength cry when moved, and some who are cowardly and basically weak would never dream of expressing a feeling of depression by weeping. Whether we cry or don't cry usually depends on family attitudes.

Many doctors feel it is healthy for young boys to be as free as girls are to express their feelings of sorrow. We are all vulnerable to pain and it is honest to admit it. Men should not be ashamed of expressing tender feelings or their capacity to be moved. This is human and is one of the things that distinguishes us from animals.

Because of our early training, women are much more apt to release their sorrow in tears and sobbing. Men are far more likely than women to weep when overjoyed by a circumstance that involves strong emotional feelings. On the other hand, women weep more than men do when the prevailing state is anguish.

Your young man may have fewer inhibitions about expressing emotion. Because of this, he may actually live longer. Some medical authorities feel that by repressing and denying feelings, we build up tension and anxiety that will have a profound effect on our general physical health.

Square dancing scheduled

Several square dance groups have planned activities within the next few days.

Foothill Twirlers Square Dance Club will use a back to school theme for the dance Saturday at 8 p.m. The round of the month will be taught at 7:30 p.m. with Bill Coy as instructor. Chev Young will be the caller. The group will hold its beginners class on Monday at 7:30 p.m. at the clubhouse.

Steeltown Twirlers Gay '90s ball with Osa Mathews calling is set for 8 p.m., Saturday. The group will dance at the Kaiser Steel Gym in Fontana.

Swinging Stars Square Dance Club will hold its annual Grape Stomp Saturday. Carrie and Garland Freeman will be callers. The dance is set from 8 to 11 p.m. at Colony Community Park, 1240 W. 4th St., Ontario. It is open to all square dancers.

Bachelors 'n' Bachelorettes Square Dance Club will gather at the Women's Community Club, 172 W. Monterey Ave., Pomona, from 8 to 11 p.m., Oct. 1. Kenny McNabb will call. The group's class for beginners meets from 8 to 10:30 p.m., Mondays at the Women's Community Club. Singles and couples may register.

Programs scheduled at Fair

Leslie Wood, Johnson Wax consumer information specialist for the Pacific Southwest, will present six special programs at the Los Angeles County Fair next week in the Home Arts Showcase Theater in the Home Arts Building.

A graduate home economist, Miss Wood is based in Los Angeles. She will speak at 11 a.m. and at noon on Tuesday and on Oct. 2 and at 5 and 7 p.m., Sept. 30.

Her presentation will have a nostalgic theme focused upon her personal collection of washboards. She will demonstrate how these relics can be turned into attractive and functional decorative pieces for the home, sharing with the audience tips on the tools and techniques of refinishing and caring for wood. Free booklets on furniture care and furniture refinishing will be available.

Lutheran church setting for rites

Trinity Lutheran Church in Pomona was the setting for the marriage of Miss Katherine Ann Ambrose of Honolulu, Hawaii, and Kenny Lee Wisz of Honolulu, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leo A. Wisz of Pomona.

The bride is the daughter of Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Earle H. Ambrose of Central S.C.

MRS. KENNY WISZ

The double-ring afternoon ceremony was read by the Rev. William J. Bowman of St. Matthew's Lutheran Church in Glendale and by the Rev. Lee Rozen of Salem Lutheran Church in Whittier.

Mrs. Sharon N. Mickel of Washington, D.C., was the matron of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. Jane Ambrose Childress of Wilson, N.C., Mrs. Kathy D. Knowles of San Francisco and Miss Merikay Hall of Honolulu.

Best man was Stephen F. Brennan of San Jose and ushers were Dave Cummings, Honolulu; Harris Shaner, Addison, Ill.; Ray Shaner, Lake in the Hills, Ill.; Dave Soper, Placerville, Calif.; and John Foster, San Francisco.

A reception at the Ontario Motor Speedway Hall of Fame Banquet Room followed the ceremony. Five hundred Vanda orchids were flown in from Hawaii for the event.

The couple honeymooned in South Carolina, Chicago and Los Angeles before going to Honolulu where they will make their home.

The bride received her bachelor's degree from the University of Missouri and is enrolled in the MBA program at the University of Hawaii. She is a member of Delta Delta Delta. She is flight service supervisor for Pan American World Airway.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Ganesha High School, Mt. San Antonio College and San Jose State University where he received a B.S. degree. He received his Master's in business administration from the Thunderbird Graduate School of International Managers. He is a member of Theta Chi fraternity and is self-employed as a manufacturer's prepresentative.

Tracey-Ducey vows said in Claremont

Claremont Presbyterian Church was the setting for the marriage of Miss Valerie Ann Ducey and Michael Stephen Tracey.

Officiating at the ceremony which united in marriage the daughter of Mrs. Lawrence A. Ducey of Claremont and the late Lawrence (Ted) Ducey and the son of the Jerald Traceys of Claremont were the Rev. Wilson Daniel and Rev. Msgr. William J. Barry.

The bride was given in marriage by her brothers, Craig and Jim Ducey. She chose her sister, Terri Lyn Ducey, as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were a sister, Mrs. Criss Ducey Baldwin of Redwood City; Miss Kelly Dwight of San Luis Obispo; Miss Heidi Heckman, Miss Emily Waingrow and Miss Janet Thompson, all of Claremont.

Bill Johnson of Glendora was best man and ushers were Chris and John Tracey, brothers of the groom; Steve and Jim Ducey, brothers of the bride; and Steven Bazela, all of Claremont. Miss Mary Tracey was an assistant at the wedding, as were Tim and Tom Tracey.

Flower girl was the groom's sister, Patty Tracey.

A reception at The Athenaeum on the campus of Claremont Men's College followed the ceremony. The couple honeymooned in Hawaii and are now at home at Pacific Beach.

The bride is a 1973 graduate of Claremont High School and attended college in San Luis Obispo and Chico and is currently attending San Diego State University and is a teacher assistant. The bridegroom graduated from Claremont High School and graduated this year from Chico State University. He is now attending San Diego State University Graduate School and is employed in San Diego.

The grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. L.A. Ducey of Big Bear and Mr. and Mrs. I.R. Funderburg of La Verkin, Utah, were among the guests.

Imports join local crabs

BALTIMORE (AP) — It may seem like carrying coals to Newcastle, but crabhouses here are importing six tons of the crustaceans every day from Gulf Coast cities.

"We're just not selling Maryland crabs any more," said Ben Groff, owner of the Crackpot, a restaurant specializing in steamed crabs. "People today want a big crab, one that provides a lot of meat and is tasty."

Bud Paolino, who runs Bud's Restaurant, says he buys 20 to 30 boxes of Southern crabs a day. His eatery sells about 1,000 bushels of steamed crabs each week during the summer.

Paolino said he charged $12 to $14 a dozen for Louisiana jumbo crabs "and people can hardly taste the difference after seasoning and cooking. They like the fact that instead of picking through a dozen or two, you can eat maybe six of the Southern crabs and be full. It's less work."

In Ocean City, Md., the House of Crabs also uses imports in the spring when local crabs are in short supply and on summer weekends when demand is greatest, according to its owner, Ed Alvater.

"We've had some Southern crabs that weigh a pound each," he said.

Talmadge Simmons, head of Delta Airlines' freight office at Baltimore-Washington International Airport, said between 150 and 230 boxes of Gulf Coast jumbo crabs arrived at the terminal each day from New Orleans and Houston.

A box usually contains about six dozen crabs. They sell at the terminal for $40 a box, Simmons said.

"They are caught the day before and cooled until they are packed for shipping," he said. "And they're here the next day."

While the "Southern connection" may be supplying restaurants here with bigger, more plentiful crabs, seafood officials said they don't see the practice as a threat to Maryland's crab industry.
